The Malvern Hills An Archaeological Landscape:

The Malvern Hills Mark Bowden, 2013-04-15 Examines the landscape of the Malvern Hills a ridge of ancient volcanic rocks along the western edge of the Severn Valley The survey ranges from the early prehistoric period to the present day including the two large Iron Age hillforts on the ridge Landscapes Through the Lens David C. Cowley, Robin A.

Standring, Matthew J. Abicht, 2010-11-11 This volume presents the rich but under utilised and in parts inaccessible archival historic aerial imagery traditional photographs and those captured from satellites for the exploration and management of cultural heritage An unparalleled resource for archaeologists and all with an interest in landscapes images spanning the second half of the 20th century provide an unrivalled means of documenting and understanding change and informing the study of the past Case studies written by leading experts in their fields illustrate the applications of this imagery across a wide range of heritage issues from prehistoric cultivation and settlement patterns to the impact of recent landscape change Contemporary environmental and land use issues are also dealt with in a volume that will be of interest to archaeologists historians geographers and those in related disciplines The Archaeological Journal, 2006 The Oxford Handbook of Later Medieval Archaeology in Britain Christopher Gerrard, Alejandra Gutiérrez, 2018-01-11 The Middle Ages are all around us in Britain The Tower of London and the castles of Scotland and Wales are mainstays of cultural tourism and an inspiring cross section of later medieval finds can now be seen on display in museums across England Scotland and Wales Medieval institutions from Parliament and monarchy to universities are familiar to us and we come into contact with the later Middle Ages every day when we drive through a village or town look up at the castle on the hill visit a local church or wonder about the earthworks in the fields we see from the window of a train The Oxford Handbook of Later Medieval Archaeology in Britain provides an overview of the archaeology of the later Middle Ages in Britain between AD 1066 and 1550 61 entries divided into 10 thematic sections cover topics ranging from later medieval objects human remains archaeological science standing buildings and sites such as castles and monasteries to the well preserved relict landscapes which still survive This is a rich and exciting period of the past and most of what we have learnt about the material culture of our medieval past has been discovered in the past two generations This volume provides comprehensive coverage of the latest research and describes the major projects and concepts that are changing our understanding of our medieval heritage Transhumance:

Papers from the International Association of Landscape Archaeology Conference, Newcastle upon Tyne, 2018 Mark Bowden, Pete Herring, 2021-11-11 A collection of papers mostly arising from the Newcastle and Durham conference of the International Association of Landscape Archaeology 2018 explore the practice impact and archaeology of British and European transhumance the seasonal grazing of marginal lands by domesticated livestock usually accompanied by people often young women Reflections: 50 Years of Medieval Archaeology, 1957-2007: No. 30 Roberta Gilchrist, Andrew Reynolds, 2018-12-13 This volume celebrates the 50th anniversary of the Society for Medieval Archaeology established in 1957 presenting reflections on the history development and future prospects of the discipline The papers are drawn from a series of conferences and workshops that took place in 2007-08 in addition to a number of contributions that were commissioned especially for the volume They range from personal commentaries on the history of the Society and the growth of the subject see papers by David Wilson and Rosemary Cramp to historiographical regional and thematic overviews of major trends in the evolution and current practice of medieval archaeology All the publications are fully refereed with the aim of publishing at the highest academic level reports on sites of national and international importance and of encouraging the widest debate The series objectives are to cover the broadest chronological and geographical range and to assemble a series of volumes which reflect the changing intellectual and technical scope of the discipline The Medieval Cloister in England and Wales John McNeill, 2017-12-02 This dedicated volume of the Journal of the British Archaeological Association draws together ten papers which collectively explore something of the art and architecture styles and uses of the medieval cloister in England and Wales Contributors consider the continental context cloisters in English palaces Benedictine and Augustinian cloister arcades in the 12th and 13th centuries architecture and meaning in Cistercian east ranges late medieval vaulted cloisters in the West Country cloisters at the cathedrals of Old Sarum Canterbury and Lincoln and assess the extent to which the cloister bosses at Norwich cathedral priory reflect contemporary religious politics The volume also contains an extended consideration and gazetteer of all Cistercian cloisters in England and Wales Beacons in the Landscape Ian Brown, 2009-07-20 Of all Britain's great archaeological monuments the Iron Age hillforts have arguably had the most profound impact on the landscape if only because there are so many yet we know very little about them Were they recognised as being something special by those who created them or is the hillfort purely an archaeologists construct How were they constructed who lived in them and to what uses were they put This book which is richly illustrated with photography of sites throughout England and Wales addresses these and many other questions After discussing the difficult issue of definition and the great excavations on which our knowledge is based Ian Brown investigates in turn hillforts origins their architecture and the role they played in Iron Age society He also discusses the latest theories about their location social significance and chronology The book provides a valuable synthesis of the rich vein of research carried out in Britain on hillforts over the last thirty years Hillforts great variability poses many problems and this book should help guide both the specialist and non specialist alike though the complex literature Furthermore it has an important conservation objective Land use in the modern era has not been kind to these monuments with a significant number either disfigured or lost Public consciousness of their importance needs raising if their management is to be improved and their future assured Assessing Iron Age Marsh-Forts Shelagh Norton, 2021-10-07 This volume assesses marsh forts as a separate phenomenon within Iron Age society through an understanding of their landscape context and palaeoenvironmental development These substantial monuments appear to have been deliberately constructed to control areas of marginal wetland and may have played an important role in the ritual

landscape Westward on the High-Hilled Plains Derek Hurst,2017-03-31 The West Midlands has struggled archaeologically to project a distinct regional identity having largely been defined by reference to other areas with a stronger cultural identity and history such as Wessex the South West and the North Only occasionally has the West Midlands come to prominence for instance in the middle Saxon period viz the kingdom of Mercia or much later with rural south Shropshire being the birthplace of the Industrial rEvolution Yet it is a region rich in natural mineral resources set amidst readily productive farmland and with major rivers such as the Severn facilitating transportation The scale of its later prehistoric monuments notably the hillforts proclaims the centralisation of some functions whether for security exchange or emulation while society supported the production and widespread distribution of specialised craft goods Finally towards the close of prehistory localised kingdoms can be seen to emerge into view In the course of reviewing the evidence for later prehistory from the Middle Bronze Age to Late Iron Age the papers presented here adopt a variety of approaches being either regional county wide or thematic eg by site type or artefactual typology and they also encompass the wider landscape as reconstructed from environmental evidence This is the second volume in a series The Making of the West Midlands that explores the archaeology of the English West Midlands region from the Lower Palaeolithic onwards These volumes based on a series of West Midlands Research Framework seminars aim to transform perceptions of the nature and significance of the archaeological evidence across a large part of central Britain Archaeology of Sutton Park Michael Hodder,2013-11-01 Sutton Park is one of the largest urban parks in Europe It was always set apart as special and remains so as a large and well used public park Its creation as a deer park in the twelfth century preserved the past and created the present Detailed study of extensive earthworks combined with excavation documentary research palaeo environmental evidence and the results of LiDAR survey shows how the landscape was shaped and managed by people living in and around it travelling through it or hunting in it and demonstrates how its present vegetation patterns result from past uses In addition to the boundary subdivisions and fishponds of the medieval deer park its archaeological features include prehistoric burnt mounds and a Roman road and prominent remains of later uses including woodland management water powered industries military training sport and recreation In addition this book discusses management of the park to protect its landscape for the future and an appendix highlights particular features to visit Kingdom, Civitas, and County Stephen Rippon,2018 This book explores the development of territorial identity in the late prehistoric Roman and early medieval periods Over the course of the Iron Age a series of marked regional variations in material culture and landscape character emerged across eastern England that reflect the development of discrete zones of social and economic interaction The boundaries between these zones appear to have run through sparsely settled areas of the landscape on high ground and corresponded to a series of kingdoms that emerged during the Late Iron Age In eastern England at least these pre Roman socio economic territories appear to have survived throughout the Roman period despite a trend towards cultural homogenization brought about by Romanization

Although there is no direct evidence for the relationship between these socio economic zones and the Roman administrative territories known as civitates they probably corresponded very closely The fifth century saw some Anglo Saxon immigration but whereas in East Anglia these communities spread out across much of the landscape in the Northern Thames Basin they appear to have been restricted to certain coastal and estuarine districts The remaining areas continued to be occupied by a substantial native British population including much of the East Saxon kingdom very little of which appears to have been Saxon By the sixth century a series of regionally distinct identities that can be regarded as separate ethnic groups had developed which corresponded very closely to those that had emerged during the late prehistoric and Roman periods These ancient regional identities survived through to the Viking incursions whereafter they were swept away following the English re conquest and replaced with the counties with which we are familiar today

Hidden Landscapes of the Forest of Dean Jon Hoyle, 2019 The Forest of Dean in Gloucestershire between the rivers Severn and Wye where England meets Wales is known chiefly for its post medieval industrial heritage This book seeks to tell the story of its pre and early history through written sources and archaeology It builds on existing summaries such as Hart s Archaeology in Dean 1967 and Walters Ancient Dean and the Wye Valley 1992 but also incorporates historical and archaeological research undertaken in the late 20th and early 21st century in particular Gloucestershire County Council Archaeology Service s Forest of Dean Archaeological Survey This included aerial imaging using lidar technology which revealed for the first time many archaeological sites and landscapes previously obscured by woodland Although the majority of archaeological sites in the Forest of Dean are still to be investigated and their dates and status are not known for certain this book sets out a considerable amount of new information which should promote debate and encourage further investigation into the Forest s archaeology

Atlantic Europe in the First Millennium BC Thomas Hugh Moore, Xosê-Lois Armada, 2011 This volume of 33 papers on the Atlantic region of Western Europe in the first millennium BC reflects a diverse range of theoretical approaches techniques and methodologies across current research and is an opportunity to compare approaches to the first millennium BC from different national and theoretical perspectives

Old Oswestry Hillfort and its Landscape: Ancient Past, Uncertain Future Tim Malim, George Nash, 2020-06-25 This book organised into 14 well crafted chapters charts the archaeology folklore heritage and landscape development of one of England s most enigmatic monuments Old Oswestry Hillfort from the Iron Age through its inclusion as part of an early medieval boundary between England and Wales to its role during World War I
