Structural Factors In Turkic Language Contacts:

Structural Factors in Turkic Language Contacts Lars Johanson, 2002 Contact between Turkic and non Turkic languages is examined here in this text on language contact which also investigates the social and structural factors involved in the phenomenon

Language Contact and Contact Languages Peter Siemund, Noemi Kintana, 2008 This new volume on language contact and contact languages presents cutting edge research by distinguished scholars in the field as well as by highly talented newcomers It has two principal aims to analyze language contact from different perspectives notably those of language typology diachronic linguistics language acquisition and translation studies and to describe explain and elaborate on universal constraints on language contact The individual chapters offer systematic comparisons of a wealth of contact situations and the book as a whole makes a valuable contribution to deepening our understanding of contact induced language change With its broad approach this work will be welcomed by scholars of many different persuasions

Turkic Languages in Contact Hendrik Boeschoten, Lars Johanson, 2006 The volume contains contributions on contact induced language change in situations in which one of the languages is a Turkic one Most papers deal with cases of long standing language contact The geographic areas covered include the Balkans Macedonian Turkish Gagauz Western Europe Turkish German Turkish Dutch contacts Central Europe Karaim Turkey Turkish Kurdish Turkish Greek contacts Old Ottoman Turkish Iran Turkic Iranian contacts and Siberia Yakut Tungusic contacts The contributions focus on various phenomena of code interaction and on various types of structural changes in different contact settings Several authors employ the Code Copying Model which is presented in some detail in one of the articles

Language Contacts at the Crossroads of Disciplines Lea Meriläinen, Heli Paulasto, Helka Riionheimo, 2015-01-12 This volume offers a cross disciplinary insight into language contact research bringing together fresh empirical and theoretical studies from various fields concerning different dimensions of language contact and variation second language acquisition and translation In the present day world of globalization population mobility and information technology the themes of multilingualism and contact induced language change are as topical as ever and research on language contacts and cross linguistic influence has expanded rapidly during the last few decades Along with the increasing specialization of related disciplines their research perspectives methods and terminology have become dispersed although language contact phenomena themselves can rarely be confined within the scope of a single discipline This collection of articles creates dialogue between researchers from different scientific backgrounds thus viewing language contact phenomena from a broader perspective When language contact is re defined to include the mental or cognitive level of contact between different languages and varieties in the minds of language learners or translators salient links are created between the different disciplines dealing with this subject matter

Turkic-Iranian Contact Areas Lars Johanson, Christiane Bulut, 2006 International conference proceedings Mainz 1997 and 1998

Diachrony of Verb Morphology Martine Robbeets, 2015-07-24 This book deals with shared verb morphology in Japanese and other languages that have been identified as Transeurasian traditionally Altaic in previous research It analyzes shared etymologies and reconstructed grammaticalizations with the goal to provide evidence for the genealogical relatedness of these languages

Congruence in Contact-Induced Language Change Juliane Besters-Dilger, Cynthia Dermarkar, Stefan Pfänder, Achim Rabus, 2014-01-31 Modern contact linguistics has primarily focused on contact between languages that are genetically unrelated and structurally distant This compendium of articles looks instead at the effects of pre existing structural congruency between the affected languages at the time of their initial contact using the Romance and Slavic languages as examples In contact of this kind both genetic and typological similarities play a part

The Mongolic Languages Juha Janhunen, 2006-01-27 Once the rulers of the largest land empire that has ever existed on earth the historical Mongols of Chinggis Khan left a linguistic heritage which today survives in the form of more than a dozen different languages collectively termed Mongolic For general linguistic theory the Mongolic languages offer interesting insights to problems of areal typology and structural change An understanding of the Mongolic language family is also a prerequisite for the study of Mongolian and Central Eurasian history and culture This volume is the first comprehensive treatment of the Mongolic languages in English written by an international team of specialists

Turcology in Mainz Hendrik Boeschoten, Julian Rentzsch, 2010 This volume contains contributions in English and German on various topics of linguistic turcology All contributors are in some way associated with the turcological department in Mainz The articles cover a broad specter of linguistic fields such as syntax phonology morphophonology semantics pragmatics lexicon onomasitcs socio linguistics and language contact All major branches of the Turkic languages are covered with the focus of the individual contributions either on a single language or on several languages from a comparative perspective Both synchronic and diachronic issues are addressed There are contributions with either a descriptive or a theorethical bias
