

Financing Higher Education

There are different methods of financing higher education:

1. Institution-based funding The controls that are attached to the funds provided to institutions in higher education may well affect the efficiency with which education is provided.

2. Loans

In many countries throughout the world, in Scandinavia and North America in particular, Loans scheme have been introduced to finance students in higher education.

Structure And Financing Of Higher Education In Russia Ukraine And The Eu:

Structure and Financing of Higher Education in Russia, Ukraine and the EU P. G. Hare, 1997 Reviewing the goals and constraints facing higher educational institutions the contributors to this text summarize the broad range of EU experience with higher educational reforms since the 1980s Country experience in the UK Germany Russia and Ukraine are analyzed in order to show how the general issues manifest themselves The book explores systems of higher education in both the East and the West offering comparisons and ideas for those involved in these fields Internationalisation of Higher Education in Ukraine Irina Yuryeva, 2011 Higher Education Financing in the New EU Member States Mary Canning, Martin Godfrey, Dorota Holzer-Zelazewska, 2007-01-01 This paper summarizes the experiences to date of the new EU countries the Czech Republic Estonia Hungary Latvia Lithuania Poland Slovakia and Slovenia the EU8 in the reform of higher education systems in a period of growing demand changing patterns of access rapid expansion and increased participation rates and an apparent dilution of average quality The study discusses the growing experience with a variety of financing mechanisms in EU8 countries drawing on detailed country case studies and seeks to develop some useful lessons from experience mindful that each country will continue to develop its own solution based on national priorities Modernisation of higher education in Europe: funding and the social dimension 2011 EURYDICE, 2011 There is an urgent need to address the social dimension of higher education more forcefully and coherently particularly in view of the economic downturn across Europe This is the conclusion of the new Eurydice report which looks at national policies on access to higher education funding and student support The report covering EU Member States plus Iceland Liechtenstein Norway and Turkey suggests that countries are struggling to adapt their higher education systems to meet the challenges brought about by rapid societal change in recent years In particular they need to open up opportunities for more people to benefit from higher education matching this objective with coherent measures funding and monitoring to evaluate their impact European leaders have agreed a headline target that 40% of 30 34 year olds should have a higher education qualification by 2020 an increase from just over 33% today The study focuses on three key topics policies to widen participation in higher education funding trends and the impact of student fee and support systems It reveals that approaches to meet shared European objectives vary greatly between countries and have different impacts on the performance of higher education For example there seems to be an East West divide regarding routes to higher education for non traditional candidates such as adult learners and people entering university on the basis of skills gained in the workplace rather than school qualifications The report highlights changes in higher education spending in response to the crisis Over the past academic year 2010 11 compared to 2009 10 budgets were most increased in Lithuania Liechtenstein Austria France Finland and Malta while the deepest cuts were made in Greece Ireland Iceland 8 10% decrease as well as in Spain Italy the Czech Republic and Slovakia up to 3% decrease A glossary is included Individual chapters contain footnotes Contains 26 figures International Perspectives on
