Strategies and Structures Gary D. Prideaux, William J. Baker, 1987-01-01 In this monograph the nature of processing strategies is explored in some detail with an attempt to cut through the maze of often contradictory and confused proposals concerning the nature and form of various strategies Once a preliminary conception of the nature of cognitive strategies and a hypothesis of how they interact with linguistic structures has been reached it will be explored how such strategies are employed by examining experiments which address the role played by certain of these strategies in the comprehension and production of sentences The authors draw a distinction between a strategy on the one hand and a grammatical structure on the other They argued that in principle strategies ought to be formulated as language independent cognitively based operations which are involved in cognitive domains other than language but which in language processing interact with language specific structures to facilitate processing Moreover strategies are not linguistic rules since unlike rules they permit exceptions and express tendencies rather than firm yes no choices
