Struggle For Water In Peru:

The Struggle for Water in Peru Paul B. Trawick, 2003 This ecological history of peasant society in the Peruvian Andes focuses on the politics of irrigation and water management in three villages whose terraces and canal systems date back to Inca times Set in a remote valley the book tells a story of domination and resulting social decline showing how basic changes in the use of land water and labor have been pivotal in transforming the indigenous way of life The author carries out a comparison of contemporary practices in communities that vary systematically along certain dimensions He analyzes the communities similarities and differences in hydraulic organization landscaping water use and other variables Strikingly diverse patterns appear in local practice which prove to be the key to unraveling the area s history The book concludes by describing the recent intensification of a water conflict This struggle between peasants and former landlords ultimately led villagers to rise up against the national government The story culminates in the violent intrusion of the revolutionary group known as Shining Path

Watershed Politics and Climate Change in Peru Astrid B. Stensrud, 2021-07-20 This book travels to the heart of power inequality and injustice in water politics Drawing on extensive ethnographic fieldwork in Peru Astrid B Stensrud explores the impact of climate change and extractivist neoliberal policies including Integrated Water Resources Management IWRM a global paradigm that views water as a finite resource in need of management Engaging with the many different actors and entities participating in the constitution of the watershed from engineers bureaucrats and farmers to mountains springs and canals Stensrud shines light on different yet entangled water practices and water worlds and how both the watershed and our understanding of water itself have changed Challenging hegemonic understandings the book moves beyond conventional perspectives of political ecology and political economy to achieve a decolonial perspective

Water and Power in Highland Peru Paul H. Gelles, 2000 Cabanaconde a town of 5 000 people is located in the arid Andean highlands It is dominated by the foreboding Hualca Hualca mountain peak that is the source of this town s much needed water How the villagers obtain this water Paul Gelles writes is not a simple process the politics of irrigation in this area reflect a struggle for control of vital resources deeply rooted in the clash between local ritualized models of water distribution and the secular model put forth by the Peruvian state Water and Power in Highland Peru provides an insightful case study on the intense conflicts over water rights and a framework for studying ethnic conflict and the effects of development not only in Peru but in other areas as well Most of the inhabitants of Cabanaconde do not identify themselves with the dominant Spanish speaking culture found in Peru And the Peruvian state grounded in a racist post Colonial ethos challenges the village s long standing non Western framework for organizing water management Gelles demonstrates that Andean culture is dynamic and adaptive and it is a powerful source of ethnic identity even for those who leave the village to live elsewhere Indigenous rituals developed in this part of the world he states have become powerful tools of resistance against interference by local elites and the present day Peruvian state Most importantly the micropolitics of Cabanaconde provide a window into a struggle that is taking place around the world Water Security, Justice and the Politics of Water Rights in Peru and Bolivia Miriam Seemann, 2016-04-08 The author scrutinizes the claim of policy makers and experts that legal recognition of local water rights would reduce water conflict and increase water security and equality for peasant and indigenous water users She analyzes two distinct top down and bottom up formalization policies in Peru and Bolivia neoliberal the former indigenist socialist the latter The policies have intended and unintended consequences and impact on marginalized peasants and the complex inter legal systems for providing water security on the ground This study seeks to debunk the official myth of the need to create state centric top down legal security in complex pluralistic water realities The engagement between formal and alternative water securities and controversial notions of rightness is interwoven and contested a complex setting is unveiled that forbids one size fits all solutions Peru's and Bolivia's case studies demonstrate how formalization policies while aiming to enhance inclusion in practice actually reinforce exclusion of the marginalized Water rights formalization is certainly no panacea Rural-Urban Water Struggles Lena Hommes, Rutgerd Boelens, Leila M. Harris, Gert Jan Veldwisch, 2020-06-29 Rural Urban Water Struggles compiles diverse analyses of rural urban water connections discourses identities and struggles evolving in the context of urbanization around the world Departing from an understanding of urbanization as a process of constant making and remaking of multi scalar territorial interactions that extend beyond traditional city boundaries and that deeply reconfigure rural urban hydrosocial territories and interlinkages the chapters demonstrate the need to reconsider and trouble the rural urban dichotomy The contributors scrutinize how existing approaches for securing urban water supply ranging from water transfers to payments for ecosystem services all rely on a myriad of techniques they are produced by and embedded in specific institutional and legal arrangements actor alliances discourses interests and technologies entwining local regional and global scales The different chapters show the need to better understand on the ground realities taking account of inequalities in water access and control as well as representation and cultural political recognition among rural and urban subjects Rural Urban Water Struggles will be of great use to scholars of water governance and justice environmental justice and political ecology This book was originally published as a special issue of Water International Water, Power and Identity Rutgerd Boelens, 2015-04-10 This book addresses two major issues in natural resource management and political ecology the complex conflicting relationship between communities managing water on the ground and national global policy making institutions and elites and how grassroots defend against encroachment question the self evidence of State market based water governance and confront coercive and participatory boundary policing normal vs abnormal The book examines grassroots building of multi layered water rights territories and State market and expert networks vigorous efforts to reshape these water societies in their own image seizing resources and or aligning users identities and rights systems within dominant frameworks Distributive and cultural politics entwine It is shown that attempts to modernize and normalize users through universalized water culture rational water use and de politicized interventions deepen water security problems rather than alleviating them. However, social struggles negotiate and enforce water rights. User collectives challenge imposed water rights and identities, constructing new ones to strategically acquire water control autonomy and re-moralize their waterscapes. The author shows that battles for material control include the right to culturally define and politically organize water rights and territories. Andean illustrations from Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia, and Chile from peasant indigenous life stories to international policy making highlight open and subsurface hydro-social networks. They reveal how water justice struggles are political projects against indifference and that engaging in re-distributive policies and defying truth politics extends context particular water rights definitions and governance forms.

Andean Meltdown Karsten Paerregaard, 2023-08 Using case studies from four field sites in the Peruvian highlands where the author has conducted long-term fieldwork, Andean Meltdown offers an ethnographic account of how Andean people make sense of and adapt to climate change. Karsten Paerregaard investigates how climate change prompts them to not only reorganize their daily activities, adjust their ritual traditions, and reshuffle their worldview, but also take action to protect and gain control over their water resources, the environment, and ultimately their lives. Examining the multiple ways climate change intersects with environmental, social, and political change in Peru, Paerregaard also explores how the state and other external actors influence Andean people's climate experience and perception, and how new practices and imaginations emerge from rapid environmental change. The book's claim is that climate change and its impact on Andean society must be investigated within the broader context of current social, political, and cultural change in Peru.

Wicked Problems of Water Quality Governance James E. Nickum, Raya Marina Stephan, Henning Bjornlund, 2022-12-26 This book explores the many dimensions of water quality problems in different parts of the globe, with focus on problems of governance from legal frameworks to social discourses and compensation measures. Sustainable Development Goal SDG 6.3 on Water and Sanitation emphasizes the centrality of improving water quality to attain sustainable development. Yet the obstacles to achieving this goal are significant. This book explores the variety of difficult, possibly intractable, wicked problems of water quality governance around the world. Cases include the challenge of managing water from source to sea, exploring why attempts to do so have come up short in limiting harm to the Great Barrier Reef; differing social discourses on market-based instruments in Canada; efforts to bring to closure the human legacies of Minamata methyl mercury poisoning half a century ago in Japan; current problems of mercury use in Andean mining; misalignment of established Eastern European water laws with those of the EU water quality markets in China; the impacts of service coverage and quality on low-income households in countries from New Zealand to Bangladesh and Malawi; the importance of perceptions ranging from the use of treated wastewater by farmers in the MENA region to consumers in Fukushima and to users of the artificial river in Beijing's Olympic Park; and finally, the confluence of wicked problems in refugee camps facing COVID. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Water International.

Environmental History in the Pacific World J.R. McNeill, 2022-03-01 This volume brings together a set of key articles from the last 30 years pertaining to the environmental history of the Pacific basin. It aims to treat the islands and waters of the Pacific as well as the lands around the Rim from New Zealand to Japan to California to Chile and is the first work of environmental history to take this inclusive view of the Pacific basin. The focus is mainly on recent centuries but as environmental history requires at times the work also takes the very long view of millennia. Several of the articles seek to bring a broad Pacific perspective to bear on their subjects while others use Pacific basin examples to try to establish broader theoretical points of interest to all who are drawn to the study of the interactions between nature and culture. The book includes a bibliography of Pacific basin environmental history and an introduction that aims to sketch the contours and possible future directions of the field.

Society, Schools and Progress in Peru Rolland G Paulston, 2014-05-09 Society, Schools and Progress in Peru presents a descriptive analysis of the Peruvian educational system with particular emphasis on socio cultural changes that have transpired. The publication first elaborates on cultural and educational traditions, emergence of public schooling and the social, economic and political context of education. Concerns cover political organization, economic setting, educational consequences of socio cultural stratification, social organization, race and culture, US education missions, Indian and Spanish heritage and colonial and Republican education. The text then takes a look at educational objectives and administration, formal school programs, nonformal education and preparation of teachers. Topics include teacher supply and demand, teacher preparation programs, reform efforts, education in the military, education and industry, first level educational programs and administrative organization. The text ponders on education revolution and nation building, higher education and teacher professionalization programs. The book is a valuable source of data for historians and educators interested in the development of the educational system in Peru.
