Innovation and the Arms Race Matthew Evangelista, 2023-08-15 Innovation and the Arms Race investigates the causes and mechanisms of the technological arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union Challenging the commonly held notion that Soviet weapons innovation processes simply mirror those of the United States Matthew Evangelista shows that the United States usually leads in introducing new military technology while the Soviets typically react to American initiatives Evangelista bases his study of pivotal nuclear weapons development decisions on a variety of US and USSR primary sources including the memoirs of weapons designers and scientists declassified intelligence analyses Soviet Academy of Science documents and Nikita Khrushchev's taped reminiscences He finds that in the United States impetus for innovation comes from the bottom at the initiative of corporate or government researchers and military officials whereas the centralized Soviet system produces innovations from the top in response to foreign developments A revelatory analysis of US military policy Soviet American relations and weaponry development Innovation and the Arms Race bears lessons for the study of great power competition and military innovation today      The Soviet Union and the Arms Race David

Holloway, 1983      Target America Steve Zaloga, 1993 From the development of the A bomb and the role of espionage surrounding it to the dire environmental consequences of its nuclear power program the development of nuclear technology and weaponry in the former Soviet Union is impressively researched in this important pioneering study Photographs Maps

Arms Races in International Politics Thomas Mahnken, Joseph Maiolo, David Stevenson, 2016-01-14 This volume provides the first comprehensive history of the arms racing phenomenon in modern international politics drawing both on theoretical approaches and on the latest historical research Written by an international team of specialists it is divided into four sections before 1914 the inter war years the Cold War and extra European and post Cold War arms races Twelve case studies examine land and naval armaments before the First World War air land and naval competition during the 1920s and 1930s and nuclear as well as conventional weapons since 1945 Armaments policies are placed within the context of technological development international politics and diplomacy and social politics and economics An extended general introduction and conclusion and introductions to each section provide coherence between the specialized chapters and draw out wider implications for policymakers and for political scientists Arms Races in International Politics addresses two key questions what causes arms races and what is the connection between arms races and the outbreak of wars

Arms in the '80s John Turner, Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 2020-11-19 In the 1980s the world spent an enormous amount on preparations for war Year by year more and more resources went into the military sector More and more complex weapon systems were devised At the time of all research scientists and engineers in the world more than one in four was working for the military Throughout the 40 years since the end of World War II the technological arms race continued Then began moving faster The United States lead the way followed by the Soviet Union Between them they possessed some 50 000 nuclear warheads more than enough to destroy the world They planned to increase the number to make the weapons more accurate and to base them on new weapon platforms closer to the borders of the other side Some people preferred not to think about these things Many however were becoming increasingly concerned wondering about the future for themselves and for their children Originally published in 1985 this book was for those who wanted to know what was happening What new missiles were being built What was happening in outer space What are the facts about chemical weapons What progress was being made if any in Geneva Vienna and Stockholm where the powers were negotiating on these matters
