Sloten,2022-02-08 A fascinating account of how the United States established the first global satellite communications system to project geopolitical leadership during the Cold War On July 20 1969 the world watched spellbound as NASA astronaut Neil Armstrong stepped off the Apollo 11 lunar module to walk on the moon NASA estimated that 20 percent of the planet s population nearly 650 million people watched the moon landing footage which was made possible by the first global satellite communications system the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization or Intelsat In Beyond Sputnik and the Space Race Hugh R Sloten analyzes the efforts of US officials especially during the Kennedy administration to establish this satellite communication system and open it to all countries of the world Locked in competition with the Soviet Union for both military superiority and international prestige President John F Kennedy overturned the Eisenhower administration's policy of treating satellite communications as simply an extension of traditionally regulated telecommunications. Instead of allowing private communications companies to set up separate systems that would likely primarily serve major developed regions, the new administration decided to take the lead in establishing a single world system. Explaining how the East West Cold War conflict became increasingly influenced by North South tensions during this period, Sloten highlights the growing importance of non-aligned countries in Asia, Latin America and Africa. He also underscores the importance of a political economy of total Cold War in which many crucial aspects of US society became tied to imperatives of national security and geopolitical prestige. Drawing on detailed archival records to examine the full range of decisionmakers involved in the Intelsat system, Beyond Sputnik and the Space Race spotlights mid and lower level agency staff usually ignored by historians. One of the few works to analyze the establishment of a major global infrastructure project, this book provides an outstanding analytical overview of the history of global electronic communications from the mid nineteenth century to the present.

Athanasios G. Kanatas, Konstantina S. Nikita, Panagiotis (Takis) Mathiopoulos, 2017-10-16. Beyond 2020 wireless communication systems will have to support more than 1 000 times the traffic volume of today's systems. This extremely high traffic load is a major issue faced by 5G designers and researchers. This challenge will be met by a combination of parallel techniques that will use more spectrum more flexibly, realize higher spectral efficiency and densify cells. Novel techniques and paradigms must be developed to meet these goals. The book addresses diverse key point issues of next generation wireless communications systems and identifies promising solutions. The book's core is concentrated to techniques and methods belonging to what is generally called radio access network.

Newsletter, 1963 Summary of a Forum on Spectrum Management Policy Reform National Research Council, Computer Science and Telecommunications

Board, Committee on Wireless Technology Prospects and Policy Options, 2004-06-17. In 2003 the Department of Commerce's Spectrum Policy Initiative was established with the objective of promoting a more efficient and beneficial use of the spectrum. As part of that Initiative a series of public forums about spectrum management policy was held. The Computer Science and Telecommunications Board was asked to organize one of these forums, a public forum to gather the views of a variety of government and private sector stakeholders about the impact of spectrum policy on their activities. This report presents a summary of those views. Among those included are those representing national defense, homeland security, aviation, science, public safety, amateur radio, cellular voice and data, and terrestrial broadcast uses of the spectrum. Although prepared by the NRC, the report does not present NRC findings or recommendations. A broader study of spectrum policy including findings
