Offering a comprehensive account of the current state of EU environmental law enforcement and the developments affecting it, Martin Hedemann Robinson explores the role of the European Commission, the possibilities for private law enforcement and the responsibilities of member state national authorities. Key legal developments that have occurred since the first edition have been incorporated, including new statutory developments and case law. Particular attention is paid to the impact of the 2007 Lisbon Treaty on foundational EU treaty provisions enabling the European Commission to take legal action against EU member states infringing Union environmental law, the establishment of a new legal architecture at Union level on the topic of environmental criminal policy as well as increased EU legislative intervention in the area of environmental inspections.
