

A movie poster for the Netflix film '60 Minuten'. The central figure is a muscular man, Emilio Sakray, shown from the chest up. He has short, curly hair and is looking off to the side with a serious expression. His chest and shoulders are covered in various tattoos, including a large butterfly on his left chest and a Greek key pattern on his right shoulder. The background is a dimly lit, industrial-looking space with a staircase visible on the left. The lighting is dramatic, with warm highlights on the man's skin and cooler tones in the background.

While America Watches Jeffrey Shandler,2000-09-21 The Holocaust holds a unique place in American public culture and as Jeffrey Shandler argues in While America Watches it is television more than any other medium that has brought the Holocaust into our homes our hearts and our minds Much has been written about Holocaust film and literature and yet the medium that brings the subject to most people television has been largely neglected Now Shandler provides the first account of how television has familiarized the American people with the Holocaust He starts with wartime newsreels of liberated concentration camps showing how they set the moral tone for viewing scenes of genocide and then moves to television to explain how the Holocaust and the Holocaust survivor have gained stature as moral symbols in American culture From early teleplays to coverage of the Eichmann trial and the Holocaust miniseries as well as documentaries popular series such as All in the Family and Star Trek and news reports of recent interethnic violence in Bosnia Shandler offers an enlightening tour of television history Shandler also examines the many controversies that televised presentations of the Holocaust have sparked demonstrating how their impact extends well beyond the broadcasts themselves While America Watches is sure to continue this discussion and possibly the controversies among many readers
