Dietz,R. Ruben,A. Verhagen,2006-04-11 Sahelian West Africa has recovered from the disastrous droughts of the 1970s and 1980s People have learned to adapt to risk and uncertainty in fragile dryland environments They as well as global change scientists are worried about the impact of climate change on these West African drylands What do the experiences of the last thirty years say about the preparedness for higher temperatures lower rainfall and even more variability Detailed studies on Dryland West Africa as a whole and on Burkina Faso Mali and Northern Ghana in particular show an advanced coping behaviour and increased adaptation but also major differences in vulnerability and coping potential Climate change preparedness programmes have only just started and require more robust support and more specific social targeting for a population which is rapidly growing even more rapidly urbanising and further integrating in a globalised economy This book is the first of its kind with a comprehensive analysis of climate change experiences in West African drylands with attention for pathways of change and the diversity of adaptation options available This book is of interest to scientists studying global and climate change especially dealing with issues of adaptation Social scientists economists geographers and policy makers concerned with West Africa should also read this book

Soil Degradation and Restoration in Africa Rattan Lal, B. A. Stewart, 2019-07-09 Soil degradation is a widespread problem in Africa resulting in decreased agricultural productivity while demand for food continues to increase Degradation is caused by accelerated erosion acidification contamination depletion of soil organic matter and plant nutrients and salinization The major cause of soil degradation in Africa is uncontrolled and excessive grazing in the savanna regions followed by deforestation and the use of inappropriate and extractive farming practices Perpetual neglect of the health of soils in Africa can exacerbate the already serious problems of food and nutritional insecurity and environmental degradation Food and nutritional security of the growing population of Africa can only be achieved if degraded soils are restored and soils of agroecosystems are managed prudently and sustainably Ignoring soils and taking the fragile finite and precious soil resources for granted is the principal cause of poverty hunger and environmental degradation The downward spiral must be reversed through soil restoration measures based on translating science into action This book describes the soils of Africa processes of soil degradation extent and severity of soil degradation and the impacts of degradation processes on food and nutritional security Features Explores the extent and severity of soil degradation in Africa Analyzes the cause effect relationship between anthropogenic activities and soil degradation Reviews processes of soil degradation in Africa including erosion salinization nutrient depletion and decline of soil organic matter Addresses the effect of climate change on soil degradation in Africa Explains how soil degradation causes food and nutritional insecurity Part of the Advances in Soil Sciences series this volume is specifically devoted to the processes and factors that cause soil degradation and the challenges and potential for remediation and restoration of soil health in Africa

Fertilizer Use in African Agriculture, 2007 The good practice guidelines which form the basis of an interactive policymaker's tool kit included on a CD accompanying the book relate not only to the more focused problem of encouraging increased fertilizer use by farmers but also to the broader challenge of creating the type of enabling environment that is needed to support the emergence of efficient dynamic and commercially viable fertilizer marketing systems Jacket
