

A photograph of a rocket launch at night, set against a dark sky. The rocket is ascending vertically, leaving a large, bright plume of fire and smoke. The launch is taking place from a tropical island, with silhouettes of trees and structures visible in the background. The water in the foreground reflects the bright light from the rocket's engines, creating a shimmering path that leads the eye from the water up to the rocket. The overall mood is dramatic and awe-inspiring.

The Subject of Race in American Science Fiction Sharon

DeGraw, 2006-12-19 While the connections between science fiction and race have largely been neglected by scholars racial identity is a key element of the subjectivity constructed in American SF In his Mars series Edgar Rice Burroughs primarily supported essentialist constructions of racial identity but also included a few elements of racial egalitarianism Writing in the 1930s George S Schuyler revised Burroughs' normative SF triangle of white author white audience and white protagonist and promoted an individualistic highly variable concept of race instead While both Burroughs and Schuyler wrote SF focusing on racial identity the largely separate genres of science fiction and African American literature prevented the similarities between the two authors from being adequately acknowledged and explored Beginning in the 1960s Samuel R Delany more fully joined SF and African American literature Delany expands on Schuyler's racial constructionist approach to identity including gender and sexuality in addition to race Critically intertwining the genres of SF and African American literature allows a critique of the racism in the science fiction and a more accurate and positive portrayal of the scientific connections in the African American literature Connecting the popular fiction of Burroughs the controversial career of Schuyler and the postmodern texts of Delany illuminates a gradual change from a stable essentialist construction of racial identity at the turn of the century to the variable social construction of poststructuralist subjectivity today

Cosmic Fragments Asif A. Siddiqi, 2025-05-20 Looking beyond the well trodden celebratory narratives of space exploration and the powerful nostalgia of lunar landings Cosmic Fragments focuses instead on the moral ambiguities of spaceflight Beyond the fetishization of machines men and manifest destiny and the Cold War tensions of the space race lies a history rife with violence racial inequity colonial ambitions and catastrophe This volume yields new insights on the crucial role of environmental damage Indigenous dispossession population displacements infrastructural entanglements and narratives of decline in space exploration situated within larger questions in the history of science technology and the environment Each chapter explores histories of space travel across nations and regions to better understand the destructive power of infrastructure waste and exploitative legal regimes at the height of the space age Drawing from postcolonial science studies science and technology studies and anthropology contributors suggest that phenomena designed to disenfranchise and dislocate such as the displacement of Indigenous peoples were deeply imbedded in the coloniality of space travel By confronting and challenging problematic early accounts rooted in the cultural mores of settler colonialism Cosmic Fragments offers a fundamental repositioning of the history of spaceflight

The Geography of the Ocean Anne-Flore Laloë, 2016-04-14 Despite the fact that the vast majority of the earth's surface is made up of oceans there has been surprisingly little work by geographers which critically examines the ocean space and our knowledge and perceptions of it This book employs a broad conceptual and methodological framework to analyse specific events that have contributed to the production of geographical knowledge about the ocean These include but are not limited to Christopher Columbus first transatlantic journey the mapping of nonexistent islands the establishment of transoceanic trade routes the discovery of largescale water movements the HMS Challenger expedition the search for the elusive Terra Australis Incognita the formulation of the theory of continental drift and the mapping of the seabed Using a combination of original empirical archival material and cartographic and theoretical sources this book uniquely brings together fascinating narratives throughout history to produce a representation and mapping of geographical oceanic knowledge It questions how we know what we know about the oceans and how this knowledge is represented and mapped The book then uses this representation and mapping as a way to coherently trace the evolution of oceanic spatial awareness In recent years particularly in historical geography discovering and knowing the ocean space has been a completely separate enterprise from discovering and colonising the lands beyond it There has been such focus on studying colonised lands yet the oceans between them have been neglected This book gives the geographical ocean a voice to be acknowledged as a space where history geography and indeed historical geography took place
