Fourteen chapters provide insights into the efforts of 19th and 20th century scientists to construct working representations of invisible objects such as the structural formula of a dye a three dimensional model of a protein or a table conveying relationships between chemical elements The essays focus on scientists pragmatic use of representation exploring the concrete ways that scientists implement sign systems as productive tools both to achieve and to shape their organizational goals Editor Klein is associated with the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science Berlin Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

and Experiment in the Natural and Social Sciences Maria Carla Galavotti,2006-04-18 According to a long tradition in philosophy of science a clear cut distinction can be traced between a context of discovery and a context of justification This tradition dates back to the birth of the discipline in connection with the Circles of Vienna and Berlin in the twenties and thirties of last century Convicted that only the context of justification is pertinent to philosophy of science logical empiricists identified its goal with the rational reconstruction of scientific knowledge taken as the clarification of the logical structure of science through an analysis of its language and methods Stressing justification as the proper field of application of philosophy of science logical empiricists intended to leave discovery out of its remit The context of discovery was then discarded from philosophy of science and left to sociology psychology and history The distinction between context of discovery and context of justification goes hand in hand with the tenet that the theoretical side of science can and should be kept separate from its observational and experimental components Further the final abstract formulation of theories should be analysed apart from the process behind it resulting from a tangle of context dependent factors This conviction is reflected by the distinction between theoretical and observational sentences underpinning the Hempelian view of theories as nets whose knots represent theoretical terms floating on the plane of observation to which it is anchored by rules of interpretation

Office of Education,1962 Rethinking Scientific Change and Theory Comparison: Léna Soler,H. Sankey,Paul Hoyningen-Huene,2008-05-29 L NA SOLER This volume is a collection of essays devoted to the analysis of scientific change and stability It represents the most recent thinking on the topic of incommensurability and scientific theory change It explores the balance and tension that exists between commensurability and continuity or stabilities on the one hand and incommensurability and discontinuity or ruptures on the other And it discusses some central epistemological consequences regarding the nature of scientific progress rationality and realism With respect to these topics it investigates a number of new avenues and revisits some familiar issues with a focus on the history and philosophy of physics in a way that is informed by developments in cognitive sciences as well as the claims of New experimentalists The essays in this book are fully revised versions of papers which were originally presented at the international colloquium Repenser l'évaluation comparative des théories scientifiques stabilité ruptures incommensurabilité s organized by Léna Soler and Paul Hoyningen Huene at the University of Nancy France in June 2004 Each paper is followed by a critical comment which either represents an opposing viewpoint or suggests some developments The conference was a striking example of the sort of genuine dialogue that can take place between philosophers of science historians of science and scientists who come from different traditions and endorse opposing commitments I hope that this is evident in the book too and that it will constitute one of its attractions
