Slicing The Moon:

DADA, Surrealism, and the Cinematic Effect R. Bruce Elder, 2015-10-15 This book deals with the early intellectual reception of the cinema and the manner in which art theorists philosophers cultural theorists and especially artists of the first decades of the twentieth century responded to its advent While the idea persists that early writers on film were troubled by the cinema's lowly form this work proposes that there was another largely unrecognized strain in the reception of it Far from anxious about film's provenance in popular entertainment some writers and artists proclaimed that the cinema was the most important art for the moderns as it exemplified the vibrancy of contemporary life This view of the cinema was especially common among those whose commitments were to advanced artistic practices Their notions about how to recast the art media or the forms forged from those media's materials and the urgency of doing so formed the principal part of the conceptual core of the artistic programs advanced by the vanguard art movements of the first half of the twentieth century This book a companion to the author's previous Harmony Dissent examines the Dada and Surrealist movements as responses to the advent of the cinema

The Oxford Handbook of Modern Indian Literatures Ulka Anjaria,Anjali

Nerlekar,2024 The Oxford Handbook of Modern Indian Literatures is a compilation of scholarship on Indian literature from the 19th century to the present in a range of Indian languages On one hand because of reasons associated with national academic structures publishing resources and global visibility English writing gets privileged over all the other linguistic traditions in the scholarship on Indian literatures On the other hand within the scholarship on regional language literary productions in Hindi Marathi Bengali etc the critical works and the surveys focus only on that particular language and therefore frequently suffer from a lack of comparative breadth and or global access Both reflect the paradigm of monolingualism within which much literary scholarship on Indian literature takes place This handbook instead focuses on the multilingual pathways through which modern Indian literature gets constituted It features cutting edge literary criticism from at least seventeen languages and on traditional literary genres as well as more recent ones like graphic novels It shows the deep connections and collaborations across genres languages nations and regions that produce a literature of diverse contact zones generating innovations on form aesthetics and technique Foregrounding themes such as modernity and modernism gender caste diaspora and political resistance the book collects an array of perspectives on this vast topic
