The Competitive Ethos And Democratic Education:

The Competitive Ethos and Democratic Education John G. Nicholls, 1989 Young children and even infants work hard at mastering various skills and show spontaneous pleasure at their own accomplishment John Nicholls explores the conditions that cause students to lose their unselfconscious involvement in a game or task and become concerned with how they are stacking up against others Charting the development of children's concepts of luck effort and ability he argues that with age they are increasingly prone to take superiority over others as the definition of success An emphasis on interpersonal competition which permeates Western society exacerbates this egotistical tendency and results in diminished accomplishment and alienation from school To overcome these problems Nicholls argues we must become as little children for whom absorption in exploration and accomplishment come naturally even when those around them are more competent This ideal is unlikely to be promoted through technical approaches to education or by the current emphasis on the role of education in economic development Instead Nicholls calls for a progressive approach to education Difficult though it is to implement this approach is most likely to increase equality of motivation for intellectual development substantial accomplishment satisfaction in work and more productive relations with others These are important ideas for anyone interested in achievement motivation for those professionally involved in education and for nonspecialists interested in or worried about how we educate our children

Education in the Moral Domain Larry P. Nucci, 2001-05-07 This book brings together the results of 25 years of research on the domain theory of social cognitive development On the basis of that research which shows that morality is a domain distinct from other social values the author provides concrete suggestions for creating a moral classroom climate dealing with student discipline and integrating moral values within the curriculum Among questions addressed are Is morality a set of rules we acquire like any other Are there universal aspects to morality or is it culture specific Is there such a thing as moral character How best can teachers make use of our knowledge about children's moral and social growth in their everyday classroom practices Integrated answers to these questions result in a comprehensive approach that does not reduce moral education to a process of induction or inculcation but rather harnesses children's intrinsic motivation to comprehend and master their social worlds

Developing Decision Makers Lynn Kidman,Rod Thorpe,Robyn L. Jones,Craig Lewis,2001 Digital Technologies and Learning in Physical Education Ashley Casey,Victoria A. Goodyear,Kathleen M. Armour,2016-11-10 There is evidence of considerable growth in the availability and use of digital technologies in physical education Yet we have scant knowledge about how technologies are being used by teachers and whether or how these technologies are optimising student learning This book makes a novel contribution by focusing on the ways in which teachers and teacher educators are attempting to use digital technologies in PE The book has been created using the innovative pedagogical cases framework Each case centres on a narrative written by a PE practitioner explaining how and why technology is used in their practice to advance and accelerate learning Each practitioner narrative is then analysed by a team of experts from different disciplines The aim is to offer a multi dimensional understanding of the possibilities and challenges of supporting young people s learning with digital technologies Each case concludes with a practitioner reflection to illustrate the links between theory research and practice Digital Technologies and Learning in Physical Education encourages critical reflection on the use of technologies in PE It is an essential resource for students on physical education kinesiology or sport science courses practitioners working in PE or youth sport and researchers interested in digital technologies and education

Learning Patterns in Higher Education David Gijbels,Vincent Donche,John T. E. Richardson,Jan D. Vermunt,2013-09-11 Learning Patterns in Higher Education brings together a cutting edge international team of contributors to critically review our current understanding of how students and adults learn how differences and changes in the way students learn can be measured in a valid and reliable way and how the quality of student learning may be enhanced There is substantial evidence that students in higher education have a characteristic way of learning sometimes called their learning orientation Biggs 1988 learning style Evans et al 2010 or learning pattern Vermunt and Vermetten 2004 However recent research in the field of student learning has resulted in multi faceted and sometimes contradictory results which may reflect conceptual differences and differences in measurement of student learning in each of the studies This book deals with the need for further clarification of how students learn in higher education in the 21st century and to what extent the measurements often used in learning pattern studies are still up to date or can be advanced with present methodological and statistical insights to capture the most important differences and changes in student learning The contributions in the book are organized in two parts a first conceptual and psychological part in which the dimensions of student learning in the 21st century are discussed and a second empirical part in which questions related to how students learning can be measured and how it develops are considered Areas covered include Cultural influences on learning patterns Predicting learning outcomes Student centred learning environments and self directed learning Mathematics learning This indispensable book covers multiple conceptual perspectives on how learning patterns can be described and effects and developments can be measured and will not only be helpful for learning researchers as such but also for educational researchers from the broad domain of educational psychology motivation psychology and instructional sciences who are interested in student motivation self regulated learning effectiveness of innovative learning environments as well as assessment and evaluation of student characteristics and learning process variables
