corporate investment program The 1984 Economic Report of the President United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee, 1984 Regional Population Decline in Australia Fiona Haslam McKenzie, 1994 New Directions in MIS Management Robert J. Thierauf, 1988-11-15 Thierauf's work develops a number of interesting and potentially useful approaches to management information systems MIS practice The author presents a number of techniques some well known others more recent that practicing MIS managers may adopt to facilitate effective MIS planning for the 1990's by focusing on problem finding rather than on problem solving A primary recommendation of Thierauf's is the restructuring of the MIS organization using a functional end user departmental approach Discussed at length are various issues relevant to this restructuring such as staffing motivating MIS personnel and end users and MIS soft controls Recommended for upper level undergraduate and graduate students as well as practicing managers and MIS specialists Choice With new developments in hardware and software MIS managers are increasingly faced with the need to develop more sophisticated managerial as opposed to purely technical skills Here an acknowledged expert in the field of information systems draws on his own original research and experience to develop a set of workable strategies and techniques that MIS managers can use to function more effectively as we move into the next decade Thierauf identifies probable trends in the field in coming years and outlines ways in which MIS managers can anticipate predictable problems apply improved management skills to the end user interface and effectively motivate MIS personnel Thierauf concentrates particularly on four major areas of managerial responsibility planning organizing motivating and controlling In planning he shows how to use problem finding techniques to anticipate and solve potential problems between MIS personnel and end users To help reduce this conflict Thierauf argues there is a need for a new direction in organizing MIS departments He proposes bringing MIS and end use departments together by using a functional departmental approach In motivating MIS personnel there is need to go beyond self actualization by emphasizing mutual actualization as well as self donation Finally in the area of control Thierauf advocates the use of soft controls to replace stringent controls that have had a tendency to restrict personal freedom on the job A common thread throughout the discussion is a focus on effective guidelines for the MIS manager to follow in order to come to grips with the changing realities of the 1990s A London Bibliography of the Social Sciences , 1931 Vols 1-4 include material to June 1 1929

The Anatomy of Job Loss (Routledge Revivals) Doreen Massey, Richard Meegan, 2014-11-06 Job loss is one of the most important issues in the capitalist world today endless reports document the increasing scale of unemployment This title first published in 1982 adopted a new approach to the geography of job loss to assess why redundancy happens and where Massey and Meegan argue that an increase in dismissal does not necessarily mean that an industry is in decline rather it can be the result of a variety of issues including production for profit and the relationship between industry and location Throughout the book discussions about theory and methodology are complemented by industry based case studies This title addresses issues of particular relevance to today's economic climate and will be particularly valuable to students with an interest in employment and job loss and industrial labour and profitability

Gianturco, Nariman Behravesh, The WEFA Group, 1988-11-18 being associated with the Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates WEFA Group pioneers in the development of macroeconomic models the authors bring the appropriate credentials to this work The book is organized into six sections and discusses collectively and separately microcomputers econometric modeling and forecasting A how to book that is not burdened by too much theory it is extremely easy to read with short distinguishable chapters With only 269 pages and a thorough index it is also easy to carry and consult Business Information Alert This book written by planners for planners will assist the reader in applying microcomputer resources efficiently and imaginatively in solving common planning problems This is not a book about microcomputers nor is it a book about planning It is rather the first book to clearly explain and vividly illustrate how a microcomputer is used to solve major classes of planning problems The authors examples detail ways to productively employ several planning tools including spreadsheets databases and modeling environments Further individual chapters shed light on the microcomputer technology that is relevant to planning but often poorly understood Current and developing technologies are covered and a framework for comprehending and evaluating future technological developments is presented Behavioral implications of the microcomputer revolution are not ignored The authors examine the evolving role of the planner and planning department in the organization For those planners feeling confined or confused by computing environments this book may well point the way to greater independence and understanding It provides a bridge between the computing world and the planner Various sections explain how to build run and maintain microcomputer based planning systems The authors through their examples explain the major types of software useful to planners and indicate which type is suitable for each class of planning problem The examples illustrate good practices to pursue and common pitfalls to avoid in micro based planning This book addresses themes and issues common to a broad range of planning operations and applications It should therefore be accessible to the reader with little formal microcomputer training as well as the veteran who seeks an integrated vision of micro based planning This reference belongs in the office of every planner and planning manager who would like to make better use of computing resources
