The Ape Man:

The Ape Man William Richard Harris, 1916 Eugène Dubois and the Ape-Man from Java L.T.

Theunissen, 1988-12-31 Although the name Pithecanthropus is now seldom used there are few who study the origin of our species who will fail to recognise the historical place of the usage and its association with Eugene Dubois. During the last thirty or forty years Australopithecus and its African context has tended to draw attention from the early work on our origins in Java. It is now increasingly common to hear the term pithecanthropine used only to indicate the Asian or Far Eastern examples of Homo erectus which although probably derived from African ancestry have some features that in the opinion of some experts may justify their being considered distinctive. This discussion is not within the pages that follow which deal extensively with the work of Eugene Dubois. He was an extraordinary man who did as much as any person since to put the great antiquity of our ancestors firmly in the public domain. Dubois became involved with the study of human origins from a medical and anatomical background as have many since. The jealousies and professional pressures that we think of as a phenomenon of the post war years were clearly a major factor in deciding the future of his career. The Ape Man Henry T. Johnson, 19?? The Archetype of the Ape-Man Dawn Prince-Hughes, 2001 This interdisciplinary dissertation explores the archetype of the ape man from a phenomenological perspective with its genesis and present continuation dependent on extant and accreted human behavior and morphology. In order to ascertain the embedded components of the ape man archetype an identikit ape man as a discrete phenomenon is derived after the examination of cross cultural examples world wide. Next this discrete phenomenon and its constituent parts are compared both to extant ape species behavior and morphology and the paleoanthropological evidence to determine in what ways if any components of each are reflected accurately in the phenomenon. Utilizing concepts in the fields of cultural and physical anthropology, ethology, psychology and philosophy this dissertation asserts as its conclusion that the archetype of the ape man is a result of accreted and enacted collective memories and reflects an important phenomenon integral to human thought and form.
