The Appalachian Photographs Of Earl Palmer:

The Appalachian Photographs of Earl Palmer Jean Haskell Speer, 2014-07-11 For more than fifty years mountain born Earl Palmer traveled the Southern Appalachians with his camera recording his personal vision of the mountain people and their heritage Over these year he created in several thousand photographs a distinctive body of work that affirms a traditional image of Appalachia a region of great natural beauty inhabited by a self sufficient people whose lives are notable for simplicity and harmony For this book Jean Haskell Speer has selected more than 120 representative photographs from Palmer s collection and has written a biographical and critical commentary based on extensive interviews with the photographer Palmer s photographs Speer argues are significant cultural statements that depict not so much a geographical region as a particular idea of Appalachia

Appalachia Inside Out: Conflict and change Robert J. Higgs, 1995 An anthology of Appalachia writings

Hillbilly Anthony Harkins, 2004 This text argues that the hillbilly in his various guises has been viewed by mainstream Americans simultaneously as a violent degenerate who threatens the modern order and as a keeper of traditional values and thus symbolic of a nostalgic past free of the problems of contemporary life

Represented Brenna Wynn Greer, 2019-06-14 In 1948 Moss Kendrix a former New Deal public relations officer founded a highly successful Washington D C based public relations firm the flagship client of which was the Coca Cola Company As the first black pitchman for Coca Cola Kendrix found his way into the rarefied world of white corporate America His personal phone book also included the names of countless black celebrities such as bandleader Duke Ellington singer actress Pearl Bailey and boxer Joe Louis with whom he had built relationships in the course of developing marketing campaigns for his numerous federal and corporate clients Kendrix along with Ebony publisher John H Johnson and Life photographer Gordon Parks recognized that in the image saturated world of postwar America media in all its forms held greater significance for defining American citizenship than ever before For these imagemakers the visual representation of African Americans as good citizens was good business In Represented Brenna Wynn Greer explores how black entrepreneurs produced magazines photographs and advertising that forged a close association between blackness and Americanness In particular they popularized conceptions of African Americans as enthusiastic consumers a status essential to postwar citizenship claims But their media creations were complicated subject to marketplace dictates they often relied on gender class and family stereotypes Demand for such representations came not only from corporate and government clients to fuel mass consumerism and attract support for national efforts such as the fight against fascism but also from African Americans who sought depictions of blackness to counter racist ideas that undermined their rights and their national belonging as citizens The story of how black capitalists made the market work for racial progress on their way to making money reminds us that the path to civil rights involved commercial endeavors as well as social and political activism The Filson Club

Fitzhugh Brundage, 2015-12-01 Southerners are known for their strong sense of history But the kinds of memories southerners have valued and the ways in which they have preserved transmitted and revitalized those memories have been as varied as the region's inhabitants themselves This collection presents fresh and innovative perspectives on how southerners across two centuries and from Texas to North Carolina have interpreted their past Thirteen contributors explore the workings of historical memory among groups as diverse as white artisans in early nineteenth century Georgia African American authors in the late nineteenth century and Louisiana Cajuns in the twentieth century In the process they offer critical insights for understanding the many communities that make up the American South As ongoing controversies over the Confederate flag the Alamo and depictions of slavery at historic sites demonstrate southern history retains the power to stir debate By placing these and other conflicts over the recalled past into historical context this collection will deepen our understanding of the continuing significance of history and memory for southern regional identity Contributors Bruce E Baker Catherine W Bishir David W Blight Holly Beachley Brear W Fitzhugh Brundage Kathleen Clark Michele Gillespie John Howard Gregg D Kimball Laurie F Maffly Kipp C Brenden Martin Anne Sarah Rubin Stephanie E Yuhl Tourism in the Mountain South C. Brenden Martin, 2007 C Brenden Martin examines tourism in the context of the transformation of transportation networks urban and rural community development and the changing role of government in regulating tourism Martin illustrates how tourism represents a double edged sword cutting both ways in its impact on the region It is a transformative force that has accelerated the modernization of the Mountain South in many ways and yet tourism has also provided the main economic rationale for the region's cultural historical and environmental preservation movements

BOOK JACKET Performance, Culture, and Identity Elizabeth C. Fine, Jean Haskell, 1992-10-20 This volume is based on the premise that artistic performance is epistemological a way of knowing self culture and other The nine essays in this book based on a broad range of ethnic racial and gender groups share a common interest in exploring how performance reveals shapes and sometimes transforms personal and cultural identity Editors Fine and Speer begin by examining the interdisciplinary roots of performance studies and the role of performance studies in the field of communication They also discuss the power of performance to shape personal and cultural identity The first two chapters explore the ritual nature of performance in two different cultural contexts an African American church service and an Appalachian storytelling event of the legendary Ray Hicks In both arenas the performers act as shamans transporting the audience from their everyday secular lives to the higher ground of the mythic spheres of heroic and fantastic events The next three chapters discuss the notion of place and performance in various landscapes the English countryside the Blue Ridge Mountains and the farmland of the Midwest Through analysis of the speech and songs of a modern Sussex yeoman the ghost tales of Appalachian storytellers and the narratives of Midwest farmers coping with hard times the authors reveal a variety of ways in which narrative performances function to preserve people's relationship with the land The last four chapters share a focus on women as storytellers One chapter offers a feminist critique of personal narrative research and challenges normative assumptions about the storytelling behavior of women Another chapter interprets a narration of a Galician woman's typical day to reveal how the performance expresses deeply held attitudes and beliefs of her cultural community Words are not the only medium that women use to tell their stories The next chapter examines the story cloths of Hmong women refugees from Laos as intercultural and dialogical performances The last chapter explores self discovery and identity in the storytelling of a woman in the last years of her life This volume is particularly representative of the ways in which communication scholars approach performance studies but will also interest researchers and students of folklore anthropology sociology theatre and related disciplines
