Department of Defense Department of the Army Upon being commissioned in the Armed Services of the United States a man incurs a lasting obligation to cherish and protect his country and to develop within himself that capacity and reserve strength which will enable him to serve its arms and the welfare of his fellow Americans with increasing wisdom diligence and patriotic conviction This is the meaning of his commission It is not modified by any reason of assignment while in the service nor is the obligation lessened on the day an officer puts the uniform aside and returns to civil life Having been specially chosen by the United States to sustain the dignity and integrity of its sovereign power an officer is expected so to maintain himself and so to exert his influence for so long as he may live that he will be recognized as a worthy symbol of all that is best in the national character In this sense the trust imposed in the highest military commander in the land is not more than what is entrusted the newest ensign or second lieutenant Nor is it less It is the fact of commission which gives special distinction to the man and in turn requires that the measure of his devotion to the service of his country be distinctive as compared with the charge laid upon the average citizen The Armed Forces Officer ,1988 The Armed Forces Officer United States.
