Pope,2018-07-31 By the end of this powerful and content rich book you will be far more effective at providing and receiving constructive feedback and therefore a far more effective supervisor manager or leader Have you noticed how some managers are able to provide their people with feedback in a constructive way All the feedback they provide positive and negative alike is taken fully on board and their individual staff members and teams thrive and prosper Their departments and areas are more productive more constructive and generally have more engaged employees within them If you have never experienced it or seen it for yourself it can appear to be nothing short of miraculous I am sure you will also have noticed how some managers deliver feedback so poorly they create nothing but misery and chaos They would be better off saying nothing in fact If you have been on the receiving end of poorly delivered managerial feedback you will know how much misery and pain it can cause Poorly delivered feedback can crush the recipient I have witnessed some managers leaving such a trail of emotional disaster in their wake it has brought whole departments full of previously high performing people to their knees Whether feedback is delivered poorly by intention or otherwise is something of a moot point because the effect is always the same unhappy and unmotivated people The managers who deliver feedback well are not magicians Some may have gotten lucky and learnt to deliver feedback well
