Lehning,1995-04-28 Describes the negotiation of French national identity during the nineteenth century in terms of the relationship between the French and their rural cultures Voices of the People in Nineteenth-Century France David Hopkin,2012-04-26 An innovative study revealing that folklore collections can shed new light on the lives of the socially marginalized In a New Light Abigail Harrison Moore,R.W.

Sandwell,2021-07-15 In the early 1970s a German study estimated that women expended as many calories cleaning their coal mining husbands work clothes as their husbands did working below ground arguably making the home as much a site of industrialized work as factories and mines But while energy studies are beginning to acknowledge the importance of social and historical contexts and to produce more inclusive histories of the unprecedented energy transitions that powered industrialization women have remained notably absent from these accounts In a New Light explores the vital place of women in the shift to fossil fuels that spurred the Industrial Revolution illuminating the variety of ways in which gender and energy intersected in women s lives in nineteenth and twentieth century Europe and North America From their labour in the home where they managed the adoption of new energy sources to their work as educators in electrical housecraft and their protests against the effects of industrialization women took on active roles to influence energy decisions Together these essays deepen our understanding of the significance of gender in the history of energy and of energy transitions in the history of women and gender By foregrounding women s energetic labours and concerns the authors shed new light on energy use in the past and provide important insights as societies move towards a carbon neutral future The Spinners and Weavers of Auffy Gay L. Gullickson,2002-08-08 This 1987 book broadens our understanding of the proto industrial era and the history of women Migrants in Modern France Philip E. Early Modern Capitalism Maarten Prak,2005-06-28 This volume takes stock of recent research on economic growth as well as the development of capital and labour markets during the centuries that preceded the Industrial Revolution The book underlines the diversity in the economic experiences of early modern Europeans and suggests how this variety might be the foundation of a new conception of economic and social change Sibling Relations and the Transformations of European Kinship, 1300-1900 Christopher H. Johnson,David Warren Sabean,2011-03-01 Recently considerable interest has developed about the degree to which anthropological approaches to kinship can be used for the study of the long term development of European history From the late middle ages to the dawn of the twentieth century kinship rather than declining as is often assumed was twice reconfigured in dramatic ways and became increasingly significant as a force in historical change with remarkable similarities across European society Applying interdisciplinary approaches from social and cultural history and literature and focusing on sibling relationships this volume takes up the challenge of examining the systemic and structural development of kinship over the long term by looking at the close inner familial dynamics of ruling families the Hohenzollerns cultural leaders the Mendelssohns business and professional classes and political figures the Gladstones in France Italy Germany and England It offers insight into the current issues in kinship studies and draws from a wide range of personal documents letters autobiographies testaments memoirs as well as genealogies and works of art

Demographic Change David I. Kertzer,Dennis P. Hogan,1989 Family Political Economy and Demographic Change represents an unprecedented interdisciplinary effort to discover how changes in family life and demographic behavior actually occurred in this crucial period and how people s lives were affected The book takes issue with a number of the most influential demographic and sociological theories dealing with the evolution of the Western family and the factors responsible for fertility decline As in so many other parts of Europe the northern Italian community of Casalecchio experienced massive social and economic changes in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Characterized by sharecropping agriculture and large complex family households the community faced the effects of industrialization urbanization and dramatic political change Making use of unusually rich archival sources to reconstruct the lives of 19 000 people who lived in Casalecchio during this period Kertzer and Hogan challenge many current generalizations regarding the emergence of modern European society

Logics of History William H. Sewell Jr., 2009-07-27 While social scientists and historians have been exchanging ideas for a long time they have never developed a proper dialogue about social theory William H Sewell Jr observes that on questions of theory the communication has been mostly one way from social science to history Logics of History argues that both history and the social sciences have something crucial to offer each other While historians do not think of themselves as theorists they know something social scientists do not how to think about the temporalities of social life On the other hand while social scientists treatments of temporality are usually clumsy their theoretical sophistication and penchant for structural accounts of social life could offer much to historians Renowned for his work at the crossroads of history sociology political science and anthropology Sewell argues that only by combining a more sophisticated understanding of historical time with a concern for larger theoretical questions can a satisfying social theory emerge In Logics of History he reveals the shape such an engagement could take some of the topics it could illuminate and how it might affect both sides of the disciplinary divide
