The report stated that in some cases, including studies in Singapore, women diagnosed with breast cancer during pregnancy have had a higher rate of relapse than those who were diagnosed before pregnancy. However, the researchers noted that the study was limited by a number of factors, including the small number of women in the study and the fact that the women were not followed for a long period of time. The researchers also noted that the study was limited by the fact that the women were not followed for a long period of time.

despite the more challenging economic climate, the growth of the sector there still has to be encouraging, says the European Commission. The Commission's report states that, generally, the growth of the food industry has been positive, but the food sector has not been immune to the effects of the economic crisis. The Commission also notes that the food sector has been able to maintain its position as a key sector in the economy, and that it has been able to adapt to the changing market conditions. The Commission also notes that the food sector has been able to maintain its position as a key sector in the economy, and that it has been able to adapt to the changing market conditions.

International trade in services, such as the "digital trade" sector, is also growing rapidly. The World Bank's World Economic Outlook (2019) estimates that digital trade will account for 10% of global trade by 2025, up from 5% in 2015. This growth is driven by the increasing use of digital technologies in trade, such as e-commerce, digital marketing, and digital logistics. The World Bank also notes that digital trade is becoming increasingly important for developing countries, as it provides a way to access global markets and attract foreign investment.
