Archaeological Encounters Margarita Díaz-Andreu, 2012-11-13 This book examines the relationship between British and Spanish archaeology in the light of international geographies of knowledge It looks at the practical aspects of the personal relationships established between British and Spanish prehistoric archaeologists from the 1920s to the 1970s Part I of the book sets the scene It provides some contextual information on the main events in the archaeology of both countries in the period under study It also introduces Professor Luis Pericot the archaeologist whose archive serves as the basis for much of what is discussed throughout the following chapters In Part II of the book an analysis of the correspondence held in the Pericot Archive the Fons Pericot in the Biblioteca de Catalunya is undertaken The examination of the letters exchanged between Spanish and British prehistorians in general and in particular between Luis Pericot and about a dozen major British scholars of his time allows the reconstruction of the nature of the relationships formed between them The analysis has been divided into three chapters corresponding to the three main towns where his correspondents lived for most of their academic careers London Cambridge and Oxford In Part III of the book the information obtained from the correspondence is then complemented and re examined considering three main aspects the production transmission and reception of knowledge This analysis puts together aspects discussed in Part I of the book with the data gathered from the letters in Part II as well as other information provided by publications including translations and reviews First of all an assessment is made as to whether the geographical context affected the way knowledge of prehistoric archaeology was produced Secondly the mechanisms and networks that allowed the international transmission of both ideas and practices linked to prehistoric archaeology are assessed A third aspect looked into is the reception of knowledge linking this with issues such as academic prestige and authority

The Ancestry of Regional Spatial Planning Louis C. Wassenhoven, 2018-09-20 This book is not a historical or archaeological treatise but rather a study in which the author looks at the past not as a historian but as a planner who has the ambition to unravel the early manifestations of his discipline a discipline which did not exist as such in remote periods but the ingredients of which were nevertheless present The author has observed the past equipped with knowledge and understanding of what regional planning was in the second half of the twentieth century and still is He stands in the period of the first decades after the Second World War which were the formative years of regional planning and looks back at bygone ages He discusses ideas and literature from the immediate post war period in order to examine the ancestry of regional planning through their lens The book will attract a broad range of readers because of its approach and its wide coverage of historical periods and world regions Although Europe is the main focus the book contains material on all continents and all periods the ancient world the medieval age and the modern era The history of Urban Planning is taught and researched widely but the history or pre history before the twentieth century of Regional Spatial Planning is not This book will fill that vacuum

Background to Beakers European Association of Archaeologists. Annual Meeting, 2012 Background to Beakers is the result of an inspiring session at the yearly conference of European Association of Archaeologists in The Hague in September 2010 The conference brought together thirteen speakers on the subject Beakers in Transition Together we explored the background to the Bell beaker complex in different regions departing from the idea that migration is not the comprehensive solution to the adoption of bell Beakers Therefore we asked the participants to discuss how in their region Beakers were incorporated in existing cultural complexes as one of the manners to understand the processes of innovation that were undoubtedly part of the Beaker complex In this book eight of the speakers have contributed papers resulting in a diverse and interesting approach to Beakers We can see how scholars in Scandinavia the Low Countries Poland Switzerland France Morocco even struggle with the same problems but have different solutions everywhere The book reads as an inspiration for new approaches and for a discussion of cultural backgrounds in stead of searching for the oldest Beaker The authors are all established scholars in the field of Bronze Age research
