This wide ranging study surveys the present state of international relations as an academic field. It locates and assesses recent developments in the field in short what is being done where by whom and why. The editors have focused on some central and controversial theoretical issues and included surveys of principal sub fields as well as the various approaches to the study of international relations in different countries. The book provides a comprehensive overview of an important and fast growing area of academic endeavour and is essential reading for teachers and students of international politics and the social sciences at large.

The Study of International Relations Robert L. Pfaltzgraff, 1977 USA. Annotated bibliography on international relations includes books and major periodicals.

References      New Directions for International Relations Alex Mintz, Bruce M. Russett, 2005-01-01. Why does the academic study of international relations have limited impact on the policy community? In New Directions for International Relations Mintz and Russett identify differences in methods of analysis as one cause of problematic unreliable results. They discuss the problem and set the stage for nine chapters by diverse scholars to demonstrate innovative new developments in IR theory and creative new methods that can lay the basis for greater consensus.

Rethinking Foreign Policy Analysis Stephen G. Walker, Akan Malici, Mark Schafer, 2011. Rethinking Foreign Policy Analysis presents the definitive treatment to integrate theories of foreign policy analysis and international relations addressing the agent centered micro political study of decisions by leaders and the structure oriented macro political study of state interactions in an international system.

Scientific Approaches to the Study of International Relations Jan-Henrik Petermann, 2011-11-21. Essay from the year 2006 in the subject Politics General and Theories of International Politics. London School of Economics Department of International Relations language English abstract. Since the behaviourist turn of the 1960s questions concerning the appropriateness and desirability of a positivist research agenda have been at the forefront of meta methodological debate within the social sciences. The evolving science wars between positivists and normativists have also presented enormous challenges to the epistemological identities and professional self images of scholars working in the academic field of International Relations. IR. Whereas positivists maintain that the overarching aim of science is the experimentally guided explanation of empirical phenomena under covering laws normativists and traditionalists hold that social scientists cannot and in fact should not emulate the causal models of the natural sciences. According to this view it is virtually impossible to study the influences of distinct variables in complex social interactions and statistical aggregation merely obscures the fact that the true causes of events are rarely obvious in the social world. Hence the purpose of political and social research ought to be a desire to understand processes from within rather than to explain them from outside Yet the traditionalist critique of social scientific positivism did not imply that positivists would be entirely oblivious to the importance of norms in international life IR does not only deal with descriptive but with political and ultimately prescriptive aspects of the social world Thus it might appear worthwhile to ask how scientific are so called scientific positivist approaches to the study of IR if their theoretical premises and empirical achievements are taken at face value and judged by their own standards of scientific neutrality and precision To answer this question I will first describe the spread of positivist thought in IR Secondly I will outline in how far two research programmes which have been heavily influenced by positivist method game theory and the democratic peace thesis have challenged traditionalist approaches and whether they can be regarded as truly scientific Drawing on these insights I will conclude that on closer inspection positivist research methods in IR do lack a perfectly scientific status although they have made important contributions to the academic field

International Politics Kalevi Jaakko Holsti, 1983 This book provides an integrated framework for analysis of international politics by linking various approaches of study into a coherent whole It provides a coherent framework for analysis to a field characterized by a growing number of theories and perspectives It uses current events as examples to illustrate broader generalizations There are examples from a variety of geographical contexts not just the U S and Europe The book provides historical comparisons i e compares the breakdown of the bipolar Cold War System to similar trends that took place in Ancient Greece There are extensive bibliographies including non U S sources to provide a helpful tool to students writing essays Material includes 5 different models of international politics and adds end of chapter Questions for Discussion and Analysis There are also discussions on international collaboration to manage environmental problems ethics and foreign policy international political economy Uruguay Round the new protectionism the European Union

Religion and Politics in International Relations Timothy Fitzgerald, 2011-10-27 Scholars in International Relations concerned with religion and its relations to world politics are rhetorically constructing a powerful modern myth A component of this myth is that religion is inherently violent and irrational unless controlled by the secular state which is inherently rational and only reluctantly violent Timothy Fitzgerald discusses how in this modern myth religion appears as a force of nature which either assists or threatens the sacred secular order of things and how religion is portrayed as a kind of universal essence which takes many forms its recent most dangerous manifestation being Islamic terrorism This book illustrates that the essential distinction between irrational religion and rational secular politics appears as an unquestioned preconception on the basis of which policy is conducted countries invaded and wars fought Arguing that this rhetorical construction of religion provides the foundation for faith in the rationality of modern liberal capitalism Fitzgerald demonstrates how a historically contingent discourse has been transformed into a powerful set of global assumptions

World Politics Brian Hocking, Michael Smith, 1990 This is a textbook which sets out a framework for the consideration of international relations in the 1990s and applies this framework to a number of case studies Within a general focus on the forces of continuity and change in the world arena it identifies four central elements in the analysis of contemporary world politics the international arena the international agenda policy processes and power and order justice and change These elements are explored in a number of chapters which identify the salient analytical issues and assess the ways in which enquiry can be pursued Methodology in the Study of International Relations Trygve Mathisen, 1959 International Relations Research E.
