published in a volume in the hope that they may be of use and of interest to the many refined minds which are seeking guidance or confirmation in their theoretical or effective admiration of works of art. Their chief merit, supposing that they have merit at all, is the fact that they are free from verbiage. In art criticism, in the opinion of the writer, the qualities to be most desired and esteemed are sympathy, delicacy of observation and appreciation and intelligent, reasoned and lucid admiration. The appreciative and the creative intellect have certain points in common. No one can ever be taught to see nature, to feel nature and to express it. The painter of genius will show you how he applies his brush, saying, "See how I do it, go and do likewise, and may God help you. And if God does not help you, your painting will not be worth talking about." The really great painters are their own masters; they are men of rare and special temperament, and through this temperament they look at Nature and see beautiful personal visions such as none have ever before beheld. Artists of this high rank are born at rare intervals in the course of the world's history; they fix their visions in color or in marble and then disappear forever, carrying away with them the secrets of their mysterious intellectual and visual processes. The first aim of the painter is beauty, or so far as the portrait is concerned, at least character; the only model and the only standard is Nature, and the whole theory and practice of painting is subordinated to the largest and the most difficult of all the arts, namely, learning to see. Nor is the summum of art the literal imitation of Nature. The finest human model, the most charming landscape cannot be well imitated except it be interpreted by the intelligence of the artist. An Introduction to Art Criticism, The Basis of Criticism in the Arts Stephen C. Pepper, 1945 Two Discourses. I. An Essay on the Whole Art of Criticism as it Relates to Painting ... II. Both by Mr. Richardson Jonathan Richardson, 1719 Old Masters and New Kenyon Cox, 1908 The Art of Art Criticism Herbert Read, British Broadcasting Corporation, 1952 Seeing Out Louder Jerry Saltz, 2009 Here Jerry Saltz offers more free-wheeling essays, reasoned reviews, thought pieces and screeds concerning contemporary art and its context.

The Art Firm Pierre Guillet de Monthoux, 2004 The Art Firm explores the seemingly unorthodox alliance of the arts management and marketing. Art firms as avant-garde enterprises and arts corporations have existed for at least two hundred years, using texts, images and other types of art to create corporate wealth. This book investigates how to apply the methods artists use in creating value to the methods more traditional managers use in running their businesses. Guillet de Monthoux offers a crash course in aesthetics from Kant to Gadamer, showing how aesthetic management and metaphysical marketing can create value Using case studies of successful art managers from Richard Wagner to Robert Wilson the author illustrates the creative role so central to value making in contemporary economies performed by aesthetic play in art firms Along the way Guillet de Monthoux points out how responsible aesthetic management and marketing can eradicate the problems of banality and totality the two capital sins of an art based economy ELEMENTS OF ART CRITICISM G. W. SAMSON,2018

Site-writing Jane Rendell,2010 The prominent cultural critic Mieke Bal defines the new discipline of art writing as a fresh mode of criticism which aims to put the art first Following this definition this volume puts the sites of the critic s engagement with art first Modern Perspectives in Western Art History W. Eugene Kleinbauer,Medieval Academy of America,1989-01-01 A collection of essays that reflect the breadth of twentieth century scholarship in art history Kleinbauer has sought to illustrate the variety of methods scholars have developed for conveying the unfolding of the arts in the Western world Originally published by Holt Rinehart and Winston 1971 The Art Business Jeffrey Taylor,2023-09-29 This book provides a comprehensive overview of the professional activities of the art business Addressing this fast moving industry The Art Business Art World Art Market analyses the sector s institutions and structures including galleries auction houses and art fairs The rapid development of art finance and its deployment of art as an asset class are covered and up to moment observations are delivered on the quickly evolving auction system that includes dramatic changes at the major auction houses Sotheby s and Christie s This edition highlights growing crises in the market including the ever more unbearable costs of art fair attendance and the lack of a reliable system for establishing ownership and title of artworks Ever more pressing ethical issues such as toxic museum donors cultural heritage compliance and problems of corrupt provenances are explored in detail Enhanced by new data analytics on the US art market the author also distils advice and guidance for working art professionals hoping to build their careers The result is an up to date picture of an art business suitable for students and practitioners across the creative sector
