The Passage Of The Thames Holocene Environment And Settlement At Runnymede:

The Passage of the Thames Stuart Needham,2000 Described as the anchor of the Runnymede Research series this volume forms a report on the Holocene environment and changes in the riverscape around the Runnymede site The build up of alluvial sediments molluscan and palynological evidence and the physical changes to the river and floodplain are all described and related to human activities at the site such as clearance and agricultural schemes The volume concludes with a history of the changing riverscape from the 8th millennium BC to the 2nd millennium AD and broader conclusions regarding the physical and biological setting are made

The Thames Jonathan Schneer,2005-01-01 England s great river through the ages

Alluvial Archaeology in Europe Andrew J. Howard,M.G. Macklin,D.G. Passmore,2003-01-01 This book documents and assesses over ten years of research in the field bringing together expertise and knowledge from the disciplines of archaeology and geomorphology and highlighting important recent advances discoveries and new directions Reflecting the wide scope of current research in this area the book contains over twenty papers focusing on various aspects of alluvial archaeology from the methodology of dating prospecting excavating etc to previously under analysed geographical areas such as intertidal wetlands

Environmental Archaeology in Ireland Eileen M. Murphy,Nicki J. Whitehouse,2007-10-10

This edited volume of 16 papers provides an introduction to the techniques and methodologies approaches and potential of environmental archaeology within Ireland Each of the 16 invited contributions focuses on a particular aspect of environmental archaeology and include such specialist areas as radiocarbon dating dendrochronology palaeoentomology human osteoarchaeology palynology and geoarchaeology thereby providing a comprehensive overview of environmental archaeology within an Irish context The inclusion of pertinent case studies within each chapter will heighten awareness of the profusion of high standard environmental archaeological research that is currently being undertaken on Irish material The book will provide a key text for students and practitioners of archaeology archaeology science and palaeoecology

Iron Age Communities in Britain Barry Cunliffe,2004-08-02 This fully revised fourth edition maintains the qualities of the earlier editions whilst taking into account the significant developments that have moulded the discipline in recent years

A

Tale of the Unknown Unknowns Hilary K. Murray,J. C. Murray,Caroline Fraser,2009-10-08 The site of Warren Field in Scotland revealed two unusual and enigmatic features an alignment of pits and a large rectangular feature interpreted as a timber building Excavations confirmed that the timber structure was an early Neolithic building and that the pits had been in use from the Mesolithic This report details the excavations and reveals that the hall was associated with the storage and or consumption of cereals including bread wheat and pollen evidence suggests that the hall may have been part of a larger area of activity involving cereal cultivation and processing The pits are fully documented and environmental evidence sheds light on the surrounding landscape

Molluscs in Archaeology Michael J. Allen,2017-06-30 The subject of Molluscs in Archaeology has not been dealt with collectively for several decades This new volume in Oxbow s Studying Scientific Archaeology series addresses many aspects of mollusks in archaeology It will give the reader an overview of the whole topic methods of analysis and approaches to interpretation It aims to be a broad based text book giving readers an insight of how to apply analysis to different present and past landscapes and how to interpret those landscapes It includes Marine Freshwater and land snails studies and examines topics such as diet economy climate environmental and land use isotopes and mollusks as artifacts It aims to provide archaeologists and students with the first port of call giving them a methods and principles and b the potential information mollusks can provide It concentrates on analysis and interpretation most archaeologists and students can undertake and understand and to review the heavier science in terms of potential application and interpretational value    Imperial College Sports Grounds and RMC Land, Harlington Andrew B.

Powell,Alistair Barclay,Lorraine Mepham,Chris J. Stevens,2016-02-16 This volume brings together the results from the excavations at the former Imperial College Sports Ground RMC Land and Land East of Wall Garden Farm near the villages of Harlington and Sipson in the London Borough of Hillingdon The excavations revealed parts of an archaeological landscape with a rich history of development from before 4000 BC to the post medieval period The opportunity to investigate two large areas of this landscape provided evidence for possible settlement continuity and shift over a period of 6000 years Early to Middle Neolithic occupation was represented by a rectangular ditched mortuary enclosure and a large spread of pits many containing deposits of Peterborough Ware pottery flint and charred plant remains A possible dispersed monument complex of three hengiform enclosures was associated with the rare remains of cremation burials radiocarbon dated to the Middle Neolithic Limited Late Neolithic and Early Bronze Age activity was identified which is in stark contrast to the Middle to Late Bronze Age when a formalized landscape of extensive rectangular fields enclosures wells and pits was established This major reorganized land division can be traced across the two sites and over large parts of the adjacent Heathrow terraces A small Iron Age and Romano British nucleated settlement was constructed with associated enclosures flanking a trackway There were wayside inhumations cremation burials and middens and more widely dispersed wells and quarries Two possible sunken featured buildings of early Saxon date were found There was also a small cemetery Subsequently a middle Saxon and medieval field system of small enclosures and wells was established    Assessing Iron Age Marsh-Forts Shelagh

Norton,2021-10-07 This volume assesses marsh forts as a separate phenomenon within Iron Age society through an understanding of their landscape context and palaeoenvironmental development These substantial monuments appear to have been deliberately constructed to control areas of marginal wetland and may have played an important role in the ritual landscape    Advances in Quaternary Entomology Scott A. Elias,2009-08-18 Advances in Quaternary Entomology addresses the science of fossil insects by demonstrating their immense contribution to our knowledge of the paleoenvironmental and climatological record of the past 2.6 million years In this comprehensive survey of the field Scott A Elias recounts development of scholarship reviews the fossil insect record from Quaternary deposits throughout the world and points to rewarding areas for future research The study of Quaternary entomology is becoming an important tool in understanding past environmental changes Most insects are quite specific as to habitat requirements and those in non island environments have undergone almost no evolutionary change in the Quaternary period We therefore can use their modern ecological requirements as a basis for interpreting what past environments must have been like Describes and identifies principal characteristics of fossil insect groups of the Quaternary period Ties Quaternary insect studies to the larger field of paleoecology Offers global coverage of the subject with specific regional examples Illustrates specific methods and procedures for conducting research in Quaternary Entomology Offers unique insight into overlying trends and broader implications of Quaternary climate change based on insect life of the period

Late Quaternary Environmental Change
Martin Bell,M.J.C. Walker,2014-07-10 Late Quaternary Environmental Change addresses the interaction between human agency and other environmental factors in the landscapes particularly of the temperate zone Taking an ecological approach the authors cover the last 20 000 years during which the climate has shifted from arctic severity to the conditions of the present interglacial environment

The Cambridge World Prehistory Colin Renfrew,Paul Bahn,2014-06-09 The Cambridge World Prehistory provides a systematic and authoritative examination of the prehistory of every region around the world from the early days of human origins in Africa two million years ago to the beginnings of written history which in some areas started only two centuries ago Written by a team of leading international scholars the volumes include both traditional topics and cutting edge approaches such as archaeolinguistics and molecular genetics and examine the essential questions of human development around the world The volumes are organised geographically exploring the evolution of hominins and their expansion from Africa as well as the formation of states and development in each region of different technologies such as seafaring metallurgy and food production The Cambridge World Prehistory reveals a rich and complex history of the world It will be an invaluable resource for any student or scholar of archaeology and related disciplines looking to research a particular topic tradition region or period within prehistory

Perishable Material Culture in Prehistory Linda M. Hurcombe,2014-04-24 Perishable Material Culture in Prehistory provides new approaches and integrates a broad range of data to address a neglected topic organic material in the prehistoric record Providing news ideas and connections and suggesting revisionist ways of thinking about broad themes in the past this book demonstrates the efficacy of an holistic approach by using examples and cases studies No other book covers such a broad range of organic materials from a social and object biography perspective or concentrates so fully on approaches to the missing components of prehistoric material culture This book will be an essential addition for those people wishing to understand better the nature and importance of organic materials as the missing majority of prehistoric material culture

Land, Power and Prestige David T. Yates,2007-08-01 A major phase of economic expansion occurred in southern England during the second and early first millennium BC accompanied by a fundamental shift in regional power and wealth towards the eastern lowlands This book offers a synthesis of available data on Bronze Age lowland field systems in England including a gazetteer of sites. The research demonstrates the importance of large scale animal husbandry in the mixed farming regimes as evidenced in the design of the field systems which incorporate droveways stock proof fencing watering holes cow pens sheep races and gateways for stockhandling. It is argued that the field systems represented a form of conspicuous production an intensification of agrarian endeavour or a statement of intent to be understood in relation to the maintenance display and promotion of hierarchical social systems involved in exchange with their counterparts across the English Channel.

Marking Place Jonathan Last, 2022-01-11 Much archaeological work is concerned with identifying gaps in our knowledge and developing strategies for addressing them we perhaps spend less time thinking about how research should proceed when we already know relatively speaking quite a lot. The program of dating causewayed enclosures in southern Britain that was published in 2011 as Gathering Time Oxbow Books gave us a new more precise chronology for many individual sites as well as for enclosures as a whole and as a consequence a far better sense of their significance and place in the story of the British Early Neolithic. Arguably causewayed enclosures are now the best understood type of Neolithic monument. Yet work continues and in the last few years new discoveries have been made older excavations published and further work undertaken on well known sites. Viewing this research within the new framework for these monuments allows us to assess where our understanding of enclosures has got to and where the focus of future research should lie. This volume originates from a Neolithic Studies Group meeting held in November 2019 which aimed firstly to showcase and explore the wide range of current work on causewayed enclosures and related sites and secondly to assess what we still want to know about these sites in light of the monumental achievement of Gathering Time. The papers collected here comprise reports on recent development led fieldwork academic research and community projects and the volume concludes with a reflection by the authors of Gathering Time.

Insect Biodiversity and Dead Wood, 2006 In August 2004 the city of Brisbane Australia was host to one of the largest recent gatherings of the world's entomologists. Several thousand delegates attended the 22nd International Congress of Entomology which featured a multitude of symposia that together covered a wide range of entomology related topics. This special General Technical Report is based on papers presented in a symposium entitled Insect Biodiversity and Dead Wood. It features contributions by scientists from around the world and these contributions clearly illustrate our growing understanding of the entomological importance of dead wood.

The Birth of Neolithic Britain Julian Thomas, 2013-11 The beginning of the Neolithic in Britain marks the end of a hunter gatherer way of life with the introduction of domesticated plants and animals polished stone tools and a range of new monuments. Julian Thomas offers a coherent argument to explain the process of transition between the Mesolithic and Neolithic periods.

Animals in the Neolithic of Britain and Europe Dale Serjeantson, David Field, 2006 Presenting 12 papers from the Neolithic Studies Group seminar on the subject of animals in the Neolithic this book aims to cover a range of approaches to animals in the Neolithic.

discussing both wild and domestic animals and focuses on their social as well as economic roles The Prehistory and Topography of Southwark and Lambeth Jane Sidell,2002 This volume provides the first synthesis of the available prehistoric and topographic information from the area of north Southwark and Lambeth London in the period c 9500 cal BA to c AD 50 The authors consider the interplay between environmental and riverine change and mobile and settled human communities They draw on recent unpublished data as well as published work including a Mesolithic camp adjacent to a Late Glacial lake in Bermondsey a burnt mound and ring ditch with an assemblage of cremations and preserved ploughmarks The book incorporates an account of the succession of the palaeoecological environment and the prehistory of Southwark and Lambeth is set in the wider regional context of the Thames Valley The thematic chapters are supported by a gazetteer of all findspots of prehistoric material and specialist reports on the worked flint pottery and radiocarbon determinations Prehistoric and Roman Landscapes Andrew J. Fleming,Richard Hingley,2007 As the essays in this book demonstrate Prehistoric and Romano British landscape studies have come a long way since Hoskins whose work reflected the prevailing Celtic ethnological narrative of Britain before the medieval period The contributors present a stimulating survey of the subject as it is in the early twenty first century and provide some sense of a research frontier where new conceptualisations of otherness and new research techniques are transforming our understanding
