Slave To The Rhythm:

Negotiating Difference Michael Awkward, 1995-03 Encamped within the limits of experience and authenticity critics today often stake out their positions according to race and ethnicity sexuality and gender and vigilantly guard the boundaries against any incursions into their privileged territory In this book Michael Awkward raids the borders of contemporary criticism to show how debilitating such protectionist stances can be and how much might be gained by crossing our cultural boundaries From Spike Lee's She's Gotta Have It to Michael Jackson's physical transmutations from Toni Morrison's Song of Solomon to August Wilson's Fences from male scholars' investments in feminism to white scholars in black texts Awkward explores cultural moments that challenge the exclusive critical authority of race and gender In each instance he confronts the question What do artists scholars and others concerned with representations of Afro American life make of the view that gender race and sexuality circumscribe their own and others' lives and narratives Throughout he demonstrates the perils and merits of the sort of boundary crossing this book ultimately makes a black male feminism In pursuing a black male feminist criticism Awkward's study acknowledges the complexities of interpretation in an age when a variety of powerful discourses have proliferated on the subject of racial gendered and sexual difference at the same time it identifies this proliferation as an opportunity to negotiate seemingly fixed cultural and critical positions
