The Annals Vol 464 November 1982 Middle And Late Life Transitions:

Contemporary Marriage Kingsley Davis, 1986-08-20 This fascinating symposium is based on an assumption that no longer seems to need justification that the institution of marriage is today experiencing profound changes But the nature of those changes their causes and consequences is very much in need of explication The experts contributing to this volume bring a wide range of perspectives sociological anthropological economic historical psychological and legal to the problem of marriage in modern society Together these essays help illuminate a form of relationship that is both vulnerable and resilient biological and social a reflection of and an influence on other social institutions Contemporary Marriage begins with an important assessment of the revolution in marital behavior since World War II tracing trends in marriage age cohabitation divorce and fertility The focus here is primarily on the United States and on industrial societies in general Later chapters provide intriguing case studies of particular countries There is a recurrent interest in the impact on marriage of modernization itself but a number of essays probe influences other than industrial development such as strong cultural and historical patterns or legislation and state control Beliefs and expectations about marriage are explored and human sexuality and gender roles are also considered as factors in the nature of marriage Contemporary Marriage offers a rich spectrum of approaches to a problem of central importance The volume will reward an equally broad spectrum of readers interested in the meaning and future of marriage in our society

Midlife Journeys Richard P. Olson, 1996 With common sense and good humor Richard Olsen examines both the outer journeys and the inner journeys making clear throughout that the middle third of peoples lives the thirties forties and fifties is not the time to bemoan the past but rather to celebrate all that is around us Olsen points out how readers can use the maturity of midlife to strengthen their personal relationships maintain and increase their health and reevaluate their vocational and career goals

Reciprocity (Routledge Revivals) Lawrence C. Becker, 2014-06-17 The tendency to reciprocate to return good for good and evil for evil is a potent force in human life and the concept of reciprocity is closely connected to fundamental notions of justice obligation or duty gratitude and equality In Reciprocity first published in 1986 Lawrence Becker presents a sustained argument about reciprocity beginning with the strategy for developing a moral theory of the virtues He considers the concept of reciprocity in detail contending that it is a basic virtue that provides the basis for parental authority obligations to future generations and obedience to law Throughout the first two parts of the book Becker intersperses short pieces of his own narrative fiction to enrich reflection on the philosophical arguments The final part is devoted to extensive bibliographical essays ranging over anthropology psychology political theory and law as well as the relevant ethics and political philosophy

Middle and Late Life Transitions Felix M. Berardo, 1982 The articles in this volume reflect a reorientation in the ways that scientists have viewed human growth and development In this new perspective transitions are viewed as normal situations that are likely to confront anyone Whatever the situation each transition encompasses a bridging period often characterized by feeling of uncertainty and instability During this interval the person engages in various degrees of social and psychological adaptations to the changing situations in his or her life While such transitional processes have long been characteristic of the human condition it is only in recent years that social and behavioral scientists have begun to rectify out limited knowledge concerning how people and families negotiate a wide array of mid and late life transitions The current preoccupation with the transitions of middle and old age has evolved from several historical economic and demographic changes that have combined to shift our populations toward the middle of the age structure and have produced new stages in the life cycle The result is that today most Americans can expect to pass through these new stages including long term survival the empty nest period universal retirement and an extended term of widowhood in late life characterized by solitary living Many of these changes have in common that they involve periods of imbalance often accompanied by strong emotions Lives must be restructured adaptations made and modifications in both mental and physical behavior must occur The descriptions of these transitions and the process by which adaptations to them are made are the subjects of the articles in this issue

Lasting Female Educational Leadership Laura Hills, 2012-08-14 Our colleges and universities are being led in large part by baby boomers who are now in later midlife Huge numbers of those middle aged leaders will retire within the next 10 years While we know that being in later midlife and impending retirement must influence a person in a leadership position at an institution of higher learning we don't really understand how This book is based upon an empirical study that linked higher education leadership to one aspect of midlife known as generativity This psychosocial phenomenon was described by Erik Erikson as a desire that peaks in midlife to leave something for future generations before one dies Generativity typically manifests itself in the legacy one intends to leave The author of this book has completed a multiple case study of women who are in later midlife and who hold high level leadership positions at an institution of higher learning In this work she shares more than has ever been known about the nature antecedents and support of generativity in the leadership of female higher education leaders in midlife
