1.0. OBJECTIVES

The main objective of this Unit—the first one with which philosophy-course is begun—is to give a pre-taste of philosophy without going to its intricacies. Although the details of the ‘how’ of philosophizing are not considered in this unit, it is a very important Unit as it is the basis for all that will follow during this course. In this unit we shall try to give a definition of philosophy, both etymological and real; and then we shall show as to how philosophy is to be differentiated from or related to ‘philosophizing’. But the notion of wisdom will be clarified in greater depth and width in relation to ‘philosophy’ and in contrast to ‘knowledge’. Philosophy is not just one of the disciplines of knowledge, as any other one. Hence clarification of its all-comprehensive character by referring to its scope is yet another objective of this unit of study. Finally the importance of philosophy is also to be paid attention to.

Thus by the end of this Unit you should be able:

- to have a basic understanding of philosophy;
- to differentiate it from philosophizing;
- to relate it with wisdom;
- to understand the all-comprehensive character of philosophy;
- to know the importance of philosophy both at the theoretical and practical levels

1.1.DEFINITION OF PHILOSOPHY

Western philosophy was born in Greece; the term ‘philosophy’ too has its roots in Greece and in Greek language. It is quite commonly known that philosophia etymologically means ‘love of wisdom’ (Philia + Sophia). But sophia had a much wider range of application than the modern English “wisdom.” Wherever intelligence can be exercised—in practical affairs, in the mechanical arts, in business—there is room for Sophia. Herodotus used the verb philosophhein in a context in which it means nothing more than the desire to find out. We can find a gradual growth in the meaning of philosophy, as we go through the history of thought.

Viewers Like You Laurie Oullette, 2012-07-24 How public is public television if only a small percentage of the American people tune in on a regular basis When public television addresses viewers like you just who are you Despite the current of frustration with commercial television that runs through American life most TV viewers bypass the redemptive oasis of the wasteland represented by PBS and turn to the sitcoms soap operas music videos game shows weekly dramas and popular news programs produced by the culture industries Viewers Like You traces the history of public broadcasting in the United States questions its priorities and argues that public TV's tendency to reject popular culture has undermined its capacity to serve the people it claims to represent Drawing from archival research and cultural theory the book shows that public television's perception of what the public needs is constrained by unquestioned cultural assumptions rooted in the politics of class gender and race The Daily Planet Patricia Aufderheide, 2000-01-01 The Daily Planet is a long-awaited selection of Patricia Aufderheide's most important critical essays updated and organized thematically to demonstrate the breadth of her thinking on media and film public telecommunications policy and contemporary society The result is a pithy and provocative exploration of the culture of daily life under capitalism Here Aufderheide demonstrates criticism that is both activist and analytical She probes the processes that shape our culture by examining diverse subjects including the struggle to create quality children's television programming the meaning of Paul Harvey the evolution of the war film over the past thirty years and the ways journalism is changed by the Internet and other new technologies Throughout Aufderheide foregrounds

The Vanishing Vision James Day,2023-04-28 This spirited history of public television offers an insider's account of its topsy turvy forty year odyssey James Day a founder of San Francisco's KQED and a past president of New York's WNET provides a vivid and often amusing behind the screens history Day tells how a program producer desperate to locate a family willing to live with television cameras for seven months borrowed a dime and a suggestion from a blind date and telephoned the Louds of Santa Barbara The result was the mesmerizing twelve hour documentary An American Family Day relates how Big Bird and his friends were created to spice up Sesame Street when test runs showed a flagging interest in the program's live action segments And he describes how Frieda Hennock the first woman appointed to the FCC overpowered the resistance of her male colleagues to lay the foundation for public television Day identifies the particular forces that have shaped public television and produced a Byzantine bureaucracy kept on a leash by an untrusting Congress with a fragmented leadership that lacks a clearly defined mission in today's multimedia environment Day calls for a bold rethinking of public television's mission advocating a system that is adequately funded independent of government and capable of countering commercial television's lowest common denominator approach with a full range of substantive programs comedy as well as culture entertainment as well as information This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1995
