Nathaniel Hawthorne

The Ancestral Footstep:

The Ancestral Footstep (fragment) Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2019-12-19 In The Ancestral Footstep Nathaniel Hawthorne crafts a haunting fragment that delves into themes of legacy, guilt, and the inextricable ties of ancestry. Written in his signature Romantic style, Hawthorne employs rich symbolism and poignant prose to evoke the complexities of family heritage and moral responsibility. The narrative context reflects the author's preoccupation with the darker aspects of human nature and the psychological burden of one's lineage, weaving a tale that speaks to the universal experience of grappling with the past. Hawthorne, a key figure in American literature, was deeply influenced by his Puritan ancestry, which often permeated his works. His exploration of moral complexity and the impact of history on individual identity can be traced back to his own familial background and the societal tensions of 19th-century America. The Ancestral Footstep is emblematic of his ongoing dialogue with themes of sin, redemption, and the interplay of fate and free will, reflecting the author's quest to understand the human condition. This captivating fragment is highly recommended for readers interested in Gothic literature and the psychological underpinnings of character development. It invites introspection on familial ties and personal identity, making it an essential read for both scholars and enthusiasts of Hawthorne's profound thematic explorations. The Ancestral Footstep Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2025-02-11 The Ancestral Footstep is an unfinished romance novel written by Nathaniel Hawthorne in the late 19th century. The story follows Middleton, an American descendant of an old English family, as he embarks on a journey to England to uncover long-buried family secrets. Central to the mystery is a bloodstained footprint left in his ancestral home, a clue that compels Middleton to investigate his lineage and the hidden truths of his heritage. As he travels through the English countryside, Middleton finds himself deeply contemplating his identity and connection to the past. Along the way, he encounters various individuals who play key roles in his journey, including a mysterious old man and a captivating young woman, Alice. Their presence suggests a deeper link to the history he is trying to unravel, making his quest more than just a search for information; it becomes a path toward self-discovery. At the beginning of the novel, Middleton is filled with both hope and uncertainty about his search for his ancestral estate. He observes the landscapes and people of England, gradually realizing that his past is not merely a forgotten history but something that continues to shape his present. As he digs deeper, he finds himself entangled in family conflicts and betrayals, revealing the weight of a divided legacy that he must confront. This novel is not just a tale of investigation; it explores the significance of ancestry and the way the past influences the present. As Middleton follows the traces of history, he finds himself at the intersection of historical inheritance and personal identity, all within a setting that blends mystery with poetic reflection. The Ancestral Footstep (fragment).

Hawthorne,2020-02-13 In these sweet and delightful moods of mind varying from one dream to another he loved indeed the solitude of his way but likewise he loved the facility which his pursuit afforded him of coming in contact with many varieties of men and he took advantage of this facility to an extent which it was not usually his impulse to do But now he came forth from all reserves and offered himself to whomever the chances of the way offered to him with a ready sensibility that made its way through every barrier that even English exclusiveness in whatever rank of life could set up The plastic character of Middleton was perhaps a variety of American nature only presenting itself under an individual form he could throw off the man of our day and put on a ruder nature but then it was with a certain fineness that made this only a distinction between it and the central truth He found less variety of form in the English character than he had been accustomed to see at home but perhaps this was in consequence of the external nature of his acquaintance with it for the view of one well accustomed to a people and of a stranger to them differs in this that the latter sees the homogeneity the one universal character the groundwork of the whole while the former sees a thousand little differences which distinguish the individual men apart to such a degree that they seem hardly to have any resemblance among themselves But just at the period of his journey when we take him up Middleton had been for two or three days the companion of an old man who interested him more than most of his wayside companions the more especially as he seemed to be wandering without an object or with such a dreamy object as that which led Middleton's own steps onward He was a plain old man enough but with a pale strong featured face and white hair a certain picturesqueness and venerableness which Middleton fancied might have befitted a richer garb than he now wore In much of their conversation too he was sensible that though the stranger betrayed no acquaintance with literature nor seemed to have conversed with cultivated minds yet the results of such acquaintance and converse were here Middleton was inclined to think him however an old man one of those itinerants such as Wordsworth represented in the Excursion who smooth themselves by the attrition of the world and gain a knowledge equivalent to or better than that of books from the actual intellect of man awake and active around them

Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2020-10-30 April 1 1858 Thursday He had now been travelling long in those rich portions of England where he would most have wished to find the object of his pursuit and many had been the scenes which he would willingly have identified with that mentioned in the ancient time yellowed record which he bore about with him It is to be observed that undertaken at first half as the amusement the unreal object of a grown man's play day it had become more and more real to him with every step of the way that he followed it up along those green English lanes it seemed as if everything would bring him close to the mansion that he sought every morning he went on with renewed hopes nor did the evening though it brought with it no success bring with it the gloom and heaviness of a real disappointment The Works of Nathaniel Hawthorne:
