The Archaeology Of South West Britain:

The Archaeology of South West Britain Susan M. Pearce, 1981 British and Irish Archaeology, 1994 Early Christianity in South-West Britain Elizabeth Rees, 2020-03-30 This book offers a new assessment of early Christianity in south west Britain from the fourth to the tenth centuries a rich period which includes the transition from Roman to native British to Saxon models of church The book will be based on evidence from archaeological excavations early texts and recent critical scholarship and cover Wessex Devon and Cornwall In the south west Wessex provides the greatest evidence of Roman Christianity The fifth century Dorset villas of Frampton and Hinton St Mary with their complex baptistery mosaics indicate the presence of sophisticated Christian house churches The fact that these two Roman villas are only 15 miles apart suggests a network of small Christian communities in this region The author uses evidence from St Patrick s fifth century Confessions to describe how members of a villa house church lived Wessex was slowly Christianised in Gloucestershire the pagan healing sanctuary at Chedworth provides evidence of later use as a Christian baptistery at Bradford on Avon in Wiltshire a baptistery was dug into the mosaic floor of an imposing villa which may by then have been owned by a bishop In Somerset a number of recently excavated sites demonstrate the transition from a pagan temple to a Christian church Beside the pagan temple at Lamyatt later female burials suggest unusually a small monastic group of women Wells cathedral grew beside the site of a Roman villa s funeral chapel In Street a large oval enclosure indicates the probable site of a Celtic monastery Early Christian cemeteries have been excavated at Shepton Mallet and elsewhere Lundy Island off the Devon coast provides evidence of a Celtic monastery with its inscribed stones that commemorate early monks At Exeter a Saxon anthology includes numerous riddles one of which describes in detail the production of an illuminated manuscript in a south western monastery Oliver Padel s meticulous documentation of Cornish place names has demonstrated that of all the Celtic regions Cornwall has by far the highest number of dedications to a single otherwise unknown individual typically consisting of a small church and a farm by the sea These small monastic cells have hitherto received little attention as a model of church in early British Christianity and the latter part of the text focuses on various aspects of this model as lived out in coastal and in upland settlements on islands and in relation to larger Breton monasteries Study of 60 Breton sites has demonstrated possible connections between larger Breton monasteries and smaller Cornish cells The American Southwest and Mesoamerica Jonathon E. Ericson, Timothy G. Baugh, 2013-11-11 Regional approaches to the study of prehistoric exchange have generated much new knowledge about intergroup and regional interaction The American South west and Mesoamerica Systems of Prehistoric Exchange is the first of two volumes that seek to provide current information regarding regional exchange on a continental basis From a theoretical perspective these volumes provide important data for the comparative analysis of regional systems relative to sociopolitical organization from simple hunter gatherers to those of complex sociopolitical entities like the state Although individual regional exchange systems are unique for each region and time period general patterns emerge relative to sociopolitical organization Of significant interest to us are the dynamic processes of change stability rate of growth and collapse of regional exchange systems relative to sociopolitical complexity These volumes provide basic data to further our understanding of prehistoric exchange systems The volume presents our current state of knowledge about regional exchange systems in the American Southwest and Mesoamerica Each chapter synthesizes the research findings of a number of other researchers in order to provide a synchronic view of regional interaction for a specific chronological period A diachronic view is also provided for regional interaction in the context of the developments in regional sociopolitical organization Most authors go beyond description by proposing alternative models within which to understand regional interaction The book is organized by geographical and chronological divisions to provide units of the broader mosaic of prehistoric exchange systems

Corpus of Anglo-Saxon Stone Sculpture in England Rosemary Cramp, 1984 This analytical catalogue of sculpture from the historic counties of Devon Dorset Somerset and Wiltshire provides a new perspective on the artistic achievement of the late Saxon kingdom The volume includes individual pieces of the highest quality such as the Bradford on Avon and Winterbourne Steepleton angels or the newly discovered figures from Congresbury Most of the monuments were carved at a time when Wessex art was at its zenith in the tenth and eleventh centuries a formative period for English cultural identity This volume sets the sculpture within an historical topographical and art historical context highlighting the close links with contemporary styles in manuscripts and metalwork Full photographic records of each monument present many new illustrations unique to this volume An indispensable research tool for all those interested in the early medieval world this volume is also an authoritative aid for local historians

English Landscapes and Identities Chris Gosden, Chris Green, Anwen Cooper, Miranda Creswell, Victoria Donnelly, Tyler Franconi, Roger Glyde, Zena Kamash, Sarah Mallet, Laura Morley, Daniel Stansbie, Letty ten Harkel, 2021-05-06 Long before the Norman Conquest of 1066 England saw periods of profound change that transformed the landscape and the identities of those who occupied it The Bronze and Iron Ages saw the introduction of now familiar animals and plants such as sheep horses wheat and oats as well as new forms of production and exchange and the first laying out of substantial fields and trackways which continued into the earliest Romano British landscapes The Anglo Saxon period saw the creation of new villages based around church and manor with ridge and furrow cultivation strips still preserved today The basis for this volume is The English Landscapes and Identities project which synthesised all the major available sources of information on English archaeology to examine this crucial period of landscape history from the middle Bronze Age c 1500 BC to the Domesday survey c 1086 AD It looks at the nature of archaeological work undertaken across England to assess its strengths and weaknesses when writing long term histories Among many other topics it examines the interaction of ecology and human action in shaping the landscape issues of movement across the landscape in various periods changing forms of food over time an understanding of spatial scale and questions of enclosing and naming the landscape culminating in a discussion of the links between landscape and identity The result is the first comprehensive account of the English landscape over a crucial 2500 year period It also offers a celebration of many centuries of archaeological work especially the intensive large scale investigations that have taken place since the 1960s and transformed our understanding of England s past

Wessex Barbara Yorke,1995-08-01 Wessex is central to the study of early medieval English history it was the dynasty which created the kingdom of England This volume uses archaeological and place name evidence to present an authoritative account of the most significant of the English Kingdoms The Prehistory of Britain and Ireland Richard Bradley, 2019-05-16 Sited at the furthest limits of the Neolithic revolution and standing at the confluence of the two great sea routes of prehistory Britain and Ireland are distinct from continental Europe for much of the prehistoric sequence In this landmark study Richard Bradley offers an interpretation of the unique archaeological record of these islands Highlighting the achievements of its inhabitants Bradley surveys the entire archaeological sequence over a 5 000 year period from the last hunter gatherers and the adoption of agriculture in the Neolithic period to the discovery of Britain and Ireland by travellers from the Mediterranean during the later pre Roman Iron Age His study places special emphasis on landscapes settlements monuments and ritual practices This edition has been thoroughly revised and updated The text takes account of recent developments in archaeological science such as isotopic analyses of human and animal bone recovery of ancient DNA and more subtle and precise methods of radiocarbon dating The Megalithic Architectures of Europe Luc Laporte, Chris Scarre, 2015-12-31 Megalithic monuments are among the most striking remains of the Neolithic period of northern and western Europe and are scattered across landscapes from Pomerania to Portugal Antiquarians and archaeologists early recognized the family resemblance of the different groups of tombs attributing them to maritime peoples moving along the western seaways More recent research sees them rather as the product of established early farming communities in their individual regions Yet the diversity of the tombs their chronologies and their varied cultural contexts complicates any straightforward understanding of their origins and distribution Megalithic Architectures provides new insight by focusing on the construction and design of European megalithic tombs on the tomb as an architectural project It shows how much is to be learned from detailed attention to the stages and the techniques through which tombs were built modified and enlarged and often intentionally dismantled or decommissioned The large slabs that were employed often unshaped may suggest an opportunistic approach by the Neolithic builders but this was clearly far from the case Each building project was unique and detailed study of individual sites exposes the way in which tombs were built as architectural social and symbolic undertakings Alongside the manner in which the materials were used it reveals a store of knowledge that sometimes differed considerably from one structure to another even between contemporary monuments within a single region The volume brings together regional specialists from Scandinavia Germany Britain France Belgium and Iberia to offer a series of uniquely authoritative studies Results of recent fieldwork are fully incorporated and much of the material is published here for the first time in English It provides an invaluable overview of the current state of research on European megalithic tombs

The Neolithic of the Irish Sea Chris Fowler, 2015-03-31 This collection of 24 papers aims to reconsider the nature and significance of the Irish Sea as an area of cultural interaction during the Neolithic period The traditional character of work across this region has emphasised the existence of prehistoric contact with sea routes criss crossing between Ireland the Isle of Man Anglesey and the British mainland A parallel course of investigation however has demonstrated that the British and

Irish Neolithics were in many ways different with distinct indigenous patterns of activity and social practices The recent emphasis on regional studies has further produced evidence for parallel yet different processes of cultural change taking place throughout the British Isles as a whole This volume brings together some of these regional perspectives and compares them across the Irish Sea area The authors consider new ways to explain regional patterning in the use of material objects and relate them to past practices and social strategies Were there practices that were shared across the Irish Sea area linking different styles of monuments and material culture or were the media intrinsic to the message The volume is based on papers presented at a conference held at the University of Manchester in 2002
