

This publication focuses on the performing arts in Flanders for young audiences. It contains information on the most important producers, a series of pictures of interesting projects with international potential, an overview of recent artistic developments, and a sketch that gives insight into the landscape's organisation and the way in which performing arts for young audiences are made and appreciated. The book is intended thereby to provide an international readership with an overview of recent developments in this unique field, which, according to Jeremy Boomer Stacey (IPAY), might well be 'the best kept secret in international performing arts for young audiences'.
