

I) Les systèmes automatisés

Un système automatisé est un objet dont le but est de réaliser une suite d'opérations programmées en réduisant au maximum l'intervention de l'homme.

Celui-ci est composé de plusieurs éléments que l'on peut classer en 2 catégories distinctes :

- La chaîne d'information, avec les éléments relatifs au traitement des données. C'est la partie qui va donner des ordres d'actions au système, en fonction des informations reçues et de son programme
- La chaîne d'énergie, qui regroupe les éléments relatifs à la l'exécution physique. C'est la partie qui va convertir l'énergie brute en actions physiques en fonction des ordres donnés par la chaîne d'information.

Structuration abstraite et chaîne linéaire en anglais contemporain Claude Delmas, 1987 Peeters 1987

Structure and Function of the Arabic Verb Maher Bahloul, 2007-08-07 Structure and Function of the Arabic Verb is a corpus based study that unveils the morpho syntax and the semantics of the Arabic verb Approaches to verbal grammatical categories the constituents of verbal systems often rely on either semantic pragmatic or syntactic analyses This research bridges the gap between these two distinct approaches through a detailed analysis of Taxis Aspect Tense and Modality in Standard Arabic This is accomplished by showing firstly some basic theoretical concerns shared by both schools of thought and secondly the extent to which semantic structures and invariant meanings mirror syntactic representations Maher Bahloul's findings also indicate that the basic constituents of the verbal system in Arabic namely the Perfect and the Imperfect are systematically differentiated through their invariant semantic features in a markedness relation Finally this study suggests that the syntactic derivation of verbal and nominal clauses are sensitive to whether or not verbal categories are specified for their feature values providing therefore a principled explanation to a long standing debate This reader friendly book will appeal to both specialists and students of Arabic linguistics language and syntax cette langue rare qu'on ne connaissait que par une brochure de 1895 et quelques articles et que les spécialistes croyaient disparue. Outre la description de la grammaire et des vocabulaires de l'anglais et de l'anglais de l'Inde, ce livre étudie aussi l'histoire de la langue à la fois d'après les quelques documents plus anciens dont un lexique de 1850 et d'après ce qu'enseigne la comparaison des langues proches que l'auteur a étudiées en détail. Études de linguistique générale Gilbert Lazard, 2001. La typologie des langues est aujourd'hui une discipline en plein essor. Ce volume réunit les articles les plus importants produits par l'auteur au cours de quelque vingt-cinq ans d'exploration des langues les plus diverses. Ces études abordent quelques questions fondamentales : nature des catégories grammaticales, classes de mots, syntaxe de la proposition, définition du sujet et de l'objet, temps, aspect et mode, articulation thème, rhème, queue, des universaux, problèmes méthodologiques et terminologiques. L'option théorique se situe résolument dans la tradition saussurienne et s'inspire de la pensée d'Émile Benveniste. Dans cet esprit, l'article initial d'orientation épistémologique présente la typologie comme une voie susceptible de rapprocher la linguistique du statut d'une véritable science. Gilbert Lazard est professeur honoraire à la Sorbonne et membre de l'Institut. Ses travaux se partagent entre l'étude des langues iraniennes et la linguistique générale. Il est notamment l'auteur d'une Grammaire du persan contemporain, d'un ouvrage sur l'actance et en collaboration d'une description de la Structure de la langue tahitienne.
