Lexicon Development for Speech and Language Processing Frank Van Eynde, 2014-11-14 This work offers a survey of methods and techniques for structuring acquiring and maintaining lexical resources for speech and language processing The first chapter provides a broad survey of the field of computational lexicography introducing most of the issues terms and topics which are addressed in more detail in the rest of the book The next two chapters focus on the structure and the content of man made lexicons concentrating respectively on morpho syntactic and morpho phonological information Both chapters adopt a declarative constraint based methodology and pay ample attention to the various ways in which lexical generalizations can be formalized and exploited to enhance the consistency and to reduce the redundancy of lexicons A complementary perspective is offered in the next two chapters which present techniques for automatically deriving lexical resources from text corpora These chapters adopt an inductive data oriented methodology and focus also on methods for tokenization lemmatization and shallow parsing The next three chapters focus on speech synthesis and speech recognition

Semantic Relations and the Lexicon M. Lynne Murphy, 2003-10-02 Semantic Relations and the Lexicon explores the many paradigmatic semantic relations between words such as synonymy antonymy and hyponymy and their relevance to the mental organization of our vocabularies Drawing on a century s research in linguistics psychology philosophy anthropology and computer science M Lynne Murphy proposes a pragmatic approach to these relations Whereas traditional approaches have claimed that paradigmatic relations are part of our lexical knowledge Dr Murphy argues that they constitute metalinguistic knowledge which can be derived through a single relational principle and may also be stored as part of our extra lexical conceptual representations of a word Part I shows how this approach can account for the properties of lexical relations in ways that traditional approaches cannot and Part II examines particular relations in detail This book will serve as an informative handbook for all linguists and cognitive scientists interested in the mental representation of vocabulary

Speechreading by Humans and Machines David G. Stork, Marcus E. Hennecke, 2013-11-11 This book is one outcome of the NATO Advanced Studies Institute ASI Workshop Speechreading by Man and Machine held at the Chateau de Bonas Castera Verduzan near Auch France from August 28 to September 8 1995 the first interdisciplinary meeting devoted the subject of speechreading lipreading The forty five attendees from twelve countries covered the gamut of speechreading research from brain scans of humans processing bi modal stimuli to psychophysical experiments and illusions to statistics of comprehension by the normal and deaf communities to models of human perception to computer vision and learning algorithms and hardware for automated speechreading machines The first week focussed on speechreading by humans the second week by machines a general organization that is preserved in this volume After the inevitable difficulties in clarifying language and terminology across disciplines as diverse as human neurophysiology audiology psychology electrical engineering mathematics and computer science the participants engaged in lively discussion and debate We think it is fair to say that there was an atmosphere of excitement and optimism for a field that is both fascinating and potentially lucrative Of the many general results that can be taken from the workshop two of the key ones are these The ways in which humans employ visual image for speech recognition are manifold and complex and depend upon the talker perceiver pair severity and age of onset of any hearing loss whether the topic of conversation is known or unknown the level of noise and so forth
