

US and Canadian Relations

- For a majority of the history of the two nations, Canada and the United States did not get along due to Canada's ties to Great Britain. The United States even invaded Canada twice during the Revolutionary War the War of 1812 which ended in failure for the US.
- As US and British relations improved in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, so did US and Canadian relations. Canada and the United States created a strong alliance during the World Wars and the Cold War. In the 1990's Canada and US became economically intertwined with NAFTA, which allowed for free trade between the nations.
- The Canadian government has supported the US with the wars in Iraq, Afghanistan, and the fight against ISIS. A majority of Canadians did not approve of American involvement in Iraq and Afghanistan.
- Culturally Canadians and Americans are very similar to one another, and share a common heritage/history.
- Most Americans think very highly of Canada, as Canada has been 95% of American's favorite nation. That feeling is not mutual for Canada, as Canadians are often critical on American politics and American influence around the world.
- Canada and United States share the worlds largest border, which has created issues with the drug trade and illegal immigration.
- Canadians often favor Democratic Presidents and Congress over their Republican counterparts.
