MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

REBECCA BEACH SMITH, District Judge.

This matter is before the court on plaintiff R.M.S. Titanic, Incorporated's ("RMST's") "Motion for Salvage and/or Finds Award," which is scheduled for a salvage award hearing to begin on October 18, 2004. In its motion, RMST requested that the court rule on two preliminary matters prior to the hearing: (1) whether the court will recognize a 1993 Proces-Verbal issued by a French maritime official which purports to award RMST title to 1,800 artifacts raised from the wreck of the R.M.S. Titanic in 1987, and (2) whether RMST will be permitted to present evidence and argument at the October 18, 2004 hearing that it should be awarded title to all 5,900 Titanic artifacts presently in its possession under the law of finds. On May 17, 2004, the court held a hearing on these two preliminary issues. For the reasons set forth below, the court will not recognize the 1993 Proces-Verbal and RMST is estopped from arguing that it is the owner of the artifacts under the law of finds. See infra, Part II. Also set forth below, for the purpose of assisting RMST in preparing for the October 18, 2004 hearing, is an explanation of the factors the court will consider in fashioning RMST's salvage award. See infra Part III.

I. Factual and Procedural History

This in rem action has been pending for over a decade, and has resulted in the publication of numerous opinions by both the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit and this court.^[1] These opinions thoroughly review much of the factual and procedural history relevant to this extended litigation and that history will not be repeated in detail here.

727 On April 15, 1912, the luxury liner R.M.S. Titanic ("Titanic") sunk in the North Atlantic Ocean, killing 1,523 of the 2,228 passengers and crew onboard. In 1985, a joint American-French expedition ⁷²⁷ discovered the wreck of the Titanic in international waters about 400 miles south of Newfoundland. The discoverers of the sunken vessel did not take any artifacts from the wreckage.

In the summer of 1987, RMST's predecessor-in-interest, Titanic Ventures limited partnership ("TVLP"), working in conjunction with the Institut français de recherche pour l'exploitation de la mer ("IFREMER"), recovered 1,800 artifacts over the course of thirty-two dives to the Titanic wreck.^[2] All of the 1987 artifacts were taken to France, where they underwent conservation and restoration processes at the government-owned laboratories of Electricite de France, and at LP3, a privately-owned conservation laboratory in Semur-en-Auxois.
