Memorial Architectural Library of Columbia University. 2d Ed., Enl Avery Library, 1968 A Heretical History of Architecture Andrzej Piotrowski, 2024-12-09 A Heretical History of Architecture challenges the conventional understanding of significant developments in Western architecture as a series of alignments among dominant ideologies and artistic programs arguing instead that the most consequential changes in the evolution of artistic and design practices across Europe between the fifth and seventeenth centuries were motivated by tensions between local religious or cultural traditions and centralized power This groundbreaking study richly demonstrates the processes through which heterodox beliefs that persisted within numerous diverse communities resulted in design experimentation so syncretic that it has heretofore eluded scholars employing conventional Euro centric taxonomies of architectural styles Advancement in Ancient Civilizations Harald Haarmann, 2020-09-21 Traditional scholarship on how ancient civilizations emerged is outmoded and new insights call for revision According to the well established paradigm Mesopotamia is considered the cradle of civilization Following the cliché of ex oriente lux light from the East all major achievements of humankind spread from the Middle East Modern archaeology cultural science and historical linguistics indicate civilizations did not originate from a single prototype Several models produced divergent patterns of advanced culture developing both hierarchical and egalitarian societies This study outlines a panorama of ancient civilizations including the still little known Danube civilization now identified as the oldest advanced culture in Europe In a comparative view a new paradigm of research and a new cultural chronology of civilizations in the Old and New Worlds emerges with climate change shown to be a continual influence on human lifeways The History of the World Hans Ferdinand Helmolt (1865- ed), 1903 Social Orders and Social Landscapes Charles W. Hartley, Laura M. Popova, Adam T. Smith, 2021-02-10 Social Orders and Social Landscapes marks a new direction in research for Eurasian archaeology that focuses on how people lived in their local environment and interacted with their near and distant neighbours rather than on overarching comparisons of archaeological culture complexes Stemming from the 2005 University of Chicago Eurasian Archaeology Conference the papers collected here reflect this new research agenda though the way in which each author addressed the theme of the conference and thus the book was strikingly varied This diversity arises out of the field's intellectual flux driven by the principled engagement of the rich analytical traditions of the Soviet CIS Anglo American and European schools Despite the variability in approaches and subject matter several key themes emerged

- 1 the reinterpretation culture categories by examining particular aspects of social life
- 2 the role social memory plays in the production of landscape and place
- 3 the influence of the built environment on societies and
- 4 the ways in which economic considerations affect social orders and landscapes

The result is a book that helps to re-image Eurasia as a complex landscape fragmented by historically contingent and shifting ecological and social boundaries rather than a bounded mosaic of culture areas or environmental zones Scholarly research on Eurasia was transformed by the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991 Entire areas and fields of research became accessible to European and American scholars for the first time resulting in the emergence of new centers specializing in primary field investigations throughout the vast politically transformed landmass of Eurasia. One such center is the University of Chicago that has recently sponsored two large international conferences on Eurasian archaeology. Social Orders and Social Landscapes is the product of the second Chicago conference held in spring 2005. The editors of the volume should be proud of their efforts that have resulted in such a broad ranging and prompt publication. The articles encompass a variety of disciplinary perspectives including archaeology, history, art history, palynology and zooarchaeology, extending chronologically from Neolithic and Bronze Age times to the formation of national identity in Turkey in the early 20th century and range geographically from Europe to China. Several articles reconstruct basic subsistence activities, others analyze distinctive settlement types and political and cultural frontiers including the assimilation and emergence of new self defined ethnic groups and the selective adoption of new systems of religious belief. What unites this diverse collection is their consistent emphasis on the social construction of reality and the production of social landscapes and memories that altered perceptions of the physical world and mediated the practical activities that here have been convincingly reconstructed from the archaeological record. In so doing, rigid stereotypes are questioned and novel interpretations persuasively advanced. Early Bronze Age pastoralism on the south Russian steppes did not consist exclusively of herding animals nor was it combined as it was later in the Iron Age with the pursuit of agriculture. Rather, D. Anthony and D. Brown suggest that at least in the Samara river valley the herding of animals occurred along side the intensive gathering of wild nutritionally rich plants. The kalas of ancient Chorasmia are not cities nor even proto urban formations but rather are large heavily fortified enclosures meant to repel attacks of armed nomadic cavalry. They represent a continuation of a distinct Central Asian settlement pattern that began in the Bronze Age and that formed the center of a landscape divided into contiguous self contained oases. The Mongols not only herded livestock but also farmed, fished, hunted and traded throughout the vast area that they had conquered, uniting most of Eurasia into a single economically integrated system. New perspectives proliferate throughout this richly detailed and extremely broad ranging collected volume. Phil Kohl, Professor of Anthropology and the Kathryn W. Davis Professor of Slavic Studies at Wellesley College, Social Orders and Social Landscapes is a stimulating addition to the still small literature in English making the rich datasets from the archaeology of Eurasia widely accessible to Western scholars. The authors of the eighteen chapters analyze data from China to the Mediterranean from the fourth millennium BCE through the fourteenth century CE with the tools of art and architectural history, text analysis, paleobotany and paleozoology and anthropological theory among others. The product of a conference at the University of Chicago, this book fulfills the goal of the graduate student organizers to apply interdisciplinary approaches to understanding the archaeology and history of the Eurasian landmass in local terms through a focus on how people lived in their local environments. In the decade and a half since the end of the Soviet Union, scholarly communication has broadened and the mutual influences have stimulated many new and thought provoking views on the Eurasian past. This book is an exemplary product of the new scholarly discourse Karen S Robinson Research Scholar Department of Anthropology Barnard College Columbia University The World's History: Oceania, Eastern Asia, and the Indian ocean Hans Ferdinand Helmolt,1904 An English adaptation of Helmolt s Weltgeschichte with a rejection of sections which did not seem quite adequate from the point of view of its English readers Publisher s note The Oxford Companion to Archaeology Brian M.
