foundation back in 969 AD. Until early in the 20th century they made up the primary urban divisions of the city and were residential in nature. Contemporary hawari, by contrast, are increasingly dominated by commercial and industrial activity. This medieval urban maze of extremely short, broken zigzag streets and dead ends are defensible territories, powerful institutions and important social systems. While the hawari have been studied as an exemplar for urban structure of medieval Islamic urbanism and as individual building typologies, this book is the first to examine in detail the socio-spatial practice of the architecture of home in the city. It investigates how people live, communicate and relate to each other within their houses or shared spaces of the alleys and, in doing so, to uncover several new socio-spatial dimensions and meanings in this architectural form. In an attempt to re-establish the link between architecture past and present and to understand the changing social needs of communities, this book uncovers the notion of home as central to understanding architecture in such a city with long history as Cairo. It firstly describes the historical development of the domestic spaces indoor and outdoor and provides an inclusive analysis of spaces of everyday activities in the hawari of old Cairo. It then broadens its analysis to other parts of the city, highlighting different customs and representations of home in the city at large. Cairo, in the context of this book, is represented as the most sophisticated urban centre in the Middle East with different and sometimes contrasting approaches to the architecture of home as a practice and spatial system. In order to analyse the complexity and interconnectedness of the components and elements of the hawari as a collective home, it layers its narratives of architectural and social developments as a domestic environment over the past two hundred years and, in doing so, explores the in-depth social meaning and performance of spaces both private and public.

Resistant City: Histories, Maps And The Architecture Of Development Eunice Mei Feng Seng, 2020-02-24. This vivid book is an inquiry into the stagnation between the development of architectural practice and the progress in urban modernization. It is about islands as territories of resistance. It is about dense places where multitudes dwell in perennial contestations with the city on every front. It is about the histories, tactics and spaces of everyday survival within the hegemonic sway of global capital and unstoppable development. It is preoccupied with making visible the culture of resistance and architecture's entanglement with it. It is about urban resilience. It is about Hong Kong where uncertainty is status quo. This interdisciplinary volume explores real and invented places and identities that are created in tandem with Hong Kong's urban development. Mapping contested spaces in the territory, it visualizes the energies and tenacity of the people as manifest in their daily life, social and professional networks and the urban spaces in which they inhabit. Embodying the multifaceted nature of the Asian metropolis, the book utilizes a combination of archival materials, public data sources, field observations and documentation, analytical drawings, models and maps. Philip II of Spain and the Architecture of Empire Laura Fernández-González, 2021-05-08 Philip II of Spain was a major patron of the arts best known for his magnificent palace and royal mausoleum at the Monastery of San Lorenzo of El Escorial

However neither the king's monastery nor his collections fully convey the rich artistic landscape of early modern Iberia. In this book Laura Fernandez Gonzlez examines Philip's architectural and artistic projects placing them within the wider context of Europe and the transoceanic Iberian dominions. Philip II of Spain and the Architecture of Empire investigates ideas of empire and globalization in the art and architecture of the Iberian world during the sixteenth century, a time when the Spanish Empire was one of the largest in the world. Fernandez Gonzlez illuminates Philip's use of building regulations to construct an imperial city in Madrid and highlights the importance of his transformation of the Simancas fortress into an archive. She analyzes the refashioning of his imperial image upon his ascension to the Portuguese throne and uses the Hall of Battles in El Escorial as a lens through which to understand visual culture, history writing and Philip's kingly image as it was reflected in the funeral commemorations mourning his death across the Iberian world. Positioning Philip's art and architectural programs within the wider cultural context of politics, legislation, religion and theoretical trends, Fernandez Gonzlez shows how design and images traveled across the Iberian world and provides a nuanced assessment of Philip's role in influencing them. Original and important, this panoramic work will have a lasting impact on Philip II's artistic legacy. Art historians and scholars of Iberia and sixteenth century history will especially value Fernandez Gonzlez's research.
