Speaking Out Linde Zingaro, 2017-03-02 Many professionals in health education and community service roles are caught in a particular bind of identity they live in a complex social borderland of credibility and professional authority while experiencing or having experienced the same discrimination violence or trauma that they are committed to conquering For some the disclosure of their own stories of marginalization has become a tool for advocacy for telling a larger truth for others self disclosure is a more personal action intended to assist isolated others in developing trust and connection Linde Zingaro a lifelong social service worker and activist interviewed several colleagues who have chosen to speak out in this way talking with them about their ethics and intentions and collaborating to identify some of the risks of negative personal and professional consequences for the practitioner She uses their voices and her own to illustrate some of the ways that these people have learned to safely and effectively use the transformative potential of storytelling as significant social action This examination of speaking out as a meaningful social practice may help other workers activists and community researchers in their efforts to be heard in the interests of a more just society

The Late-Career Novelist Hywel Dix, 2017-08-10 The first scholarly study of the phenomenon of the late career novel this book explores the ways in which bestselling contemporary novelists look back and respond to their earlier successes in their subsequent writings Exploring the work of major novelists such as Angela Carter V S Naipaul Salman Rushdie Ian McEwan Julian Barnes A S Byatt and Graham Swift The Late Career Novelist draws for the first time on social psychology and career construction theory to examine how the dynamics of a literary career play out in the fictional worlds of our best known novelists From here Hywel Dix develops and argues for a new mode of reading contemporary writing on the contexts of current literary culture

American Faces Richard H. Saunders, 2016-09-06 Portraits We know what they are but why do we make them Americans have been celebrating themselves in portraits since the arrival of the first itinerant portrait painters to the colonies They created images to commemorate loved ones glorify the famous establish our national myths and honor our shared heroes Whether painting in oil carving in stone casting in bronze capturing on film or calculating in binary code we spend considerable time creating contemplating and collecting our likenesses In this sumptuously illustrated book Richard H Saunders explores our collective understanding of portraiture its history in America how it shapes our individual and national identity and why we make portraits whether for propaganda and public influence or for personal and private appreciation American Faces is a rich and fascinating view of ourselves

Collecting Art in the Italian Renaissance Court Leah R. Clark, 2018-06-28 In this book Leah R Clark examines collecting practices across the Italian Renaissance court exploring the circulation exchange collection and display of objects Rather than focusing on patronage strategies or the political power of individual collectors she uses the objects themselves to elucidate the dynamic relationships formed through their exchange Her study brings forward the mechanisms that structured relations within the court and most importantly also with individuals representations and spaces outside the court The volume examines the courts of Italy through the wide variety of objects statues paintings jewellery furniture and heraldry that were valued for their subject matter material forms histories and social functions As Clark shows the late fifteenth century Italian court can be located not only in the body of the prince but also in the objects that constituted symbolic practices initiated political dialogues caused rifts created memories and formed associations Photographic Times ,1901 International Annual of Anthony's Photographic Bulletin and American Process Yearbook Arthur H.
