Siwa Sir Charles Dalrymple Belgrave,1923      Siwa Margaret M. Vale,2015-01-01 Siwa is a remote oasis deep in the heart of the Egyptian desert near the border with Libya Until an asphalt road was built to the Mediterranean coast in the 1980s its only links to the outside world were by arduous camel tracks As a result of this isolation Siwa developed a unique culture manifested in its crafts of basketry pottery and embroidery and in its styles of costume and silverwork The most visible and celebrated example of this was the silver jewelry that was worn by women in abundance at weddings and other ceremonies Based on conversations with women and men in the oasis and with reference to old texts this book describes the jewelry and costume at this highpoint of Siwan culture against the backdrop of its date gardens and springs social life and dramatic history It places the women s jewelry costume and embroidery into social perspective and describes how they were used in ceremonies and everyday life and how they were related to their beliefs and attitudes to the world The book also describes how in the second half of the twentieth century the arrival of the road and of television brought drastic change and the oasis was exposed to the styles and fashions of the outside world and how the traditional silver ornaments were gradually replaced by gold      Seawater Intrusion in Coastal Aquifers ,1997-01-01      Siwa Oasis Ahmed Fakhry,1944

Tourism as a Tool for Development P. Díaz,2013-10-30 Some researchers perceive tourism as a process which creates dependency and causes loss of socioeconomic and environmental control and is harmful to traditional sociocultural structures For others it is clearly an opportunity for development and convergence among societies The main consequences of tourism are economic sociocultural and socio ecological ones These directly affect the natural and cultural landscape as well as the inhabitants of the destinations Proper management can unite the local community strengthen the historical memory and promote the recognition that the landscape is a legacy worth preserving If local people can learn to appreciate the need for regulation and careful development of cultural tourism then it is possible to have an alternative to the strategies of convenience based upon the view of tourism only for profit Designing tourism to serve heritage and local sustainable development not only helps to conserve the resources that make it possible but also complies with the ethical duty to guide social perception towards awareness and respect which in turn will lead to sustainability By means of case studies and theoretical developments the authors attempt to present methods designed to minimise the impacts of tourism and encourage its positive effects Some ideas in the book discuss the role of local communities their participation in development management the singularities of community tourism planning local governance and the relationship between socio economic benefits and impacts

Roads in the Deserts of Roman Egypt Maciej Paprocki,2019-07-19 Egypt under the Romans 30 BCE 3rd century CE was a period when local deserts experienced an unprecedented flurry of activity In the Eastern Desert a marked increase in desert traffic came from imperial prospecting quarrying activities and caravans transporting wares to and from the Red Sea ports In the Western Desert resilient camels slowly became primary beasts of burden in desert travel enabling caravaneers to lengthen daily marching distances across previously inhospitable dunes Desert road archaeology has used satellite imaging landscape studies and network analysis to plot desert trail networks with greater accuracy however it is often difficult to date roadside installations and thus assess how these networks evolved in scope and density in reaction to climatic social and technological change Roads in the Deserts of Roman Egypt examines evidence for desert roads in Roman Egypt and assesses Roman influence on the road density in two select desert areas the central and southern section of the Eastern Desert and the central Marmarican Plateau and discusses geographical and social factors influencing road use in the period demonstrating that Roman overseers of these lands adapted remarkably well to local desert conditions improving roads and developing the trail network Crucially the author reconceptualises desert trails as linear corridor structures that follow expedient routes in the desert landscape passing through at least two functional nodes attracting human traffic be those water sources farmlands mines quarries trade hubs military installations or actual settlements The route of least resistance across the desert varied from period to period according to the available road infrastructure and beasts of burden employed Roman administration in Egypt not only increased the density of local desert node networks but also facilitated internodal connections with camel caravans and transformed the Sahara by establishing new or embellishing existing nodes effectively funnelling desert traffic into discernible corridors Significantly not all desert areas of Egypt are equally suited for anthropogenic development but almost all have been optimised in one way or another with road installations built for added comfort and safety of travellers Accordingly the study of how Romans successfully adapted to desert travel is of wider significance to the study of deserts and ongoing expansion due to global warming
