Student Behaviour Outcomes: Choosing Appropriate Paths

Conway, Robert & Izard, John (Eds.):
Melbourne, Victoria: ACER. 1995: pp. iv
+ 130

This publication is a collection of 12 selected papers from the 1995 Seventh National Conference on the Behaviour Management and Behaviour Change of Children and Youth with Emotional and/or Behaviour Problems. The foreword to this publication states that 'these conferences have provided an important multi-disciplinary forum for the discussion of new approaches to understanding and addressing children's behaviour problems, and for sharing experiences with fellow professionals' (my emphasis).

Papers range from accounts of specific approaches introduced into schools to effect student behaviour change, such as one based on Narrative Therapy titled 'A bad reputation gets the boot: A bad reputation throws down the gauntlet' to a review of 'Classroom management/discipline models in review and action'. The latter presents a combination of literature research and teacher self report practice with results that suggest little to feel confident about in terms of the efficacy of classroom management models.

A common theme for many of the approaches is the concept of students taking responsibility for their actions, whether in the form of conferencing, as detailed in the paper 'Conferencing: A restorative approach to interventions for serious incidents of harm in the school setting' or as the underpinning philosophy of all behaviour management at the Hunter Adolescent Support Unit described in the article 'Students with conduct disorder'.

The holistic approach of ANSUA, put forth in the paper 'Children and youth with emotional and behaviour problems: ANSUA's approach' highlights the multifaceted nature of many of the difficulties faced by students in our schools and the need to consider interdisciplinary collaboration and prioritisation in addressing them.

One general conclusion can be made from the wide variety of approaches to behaviour management and behaviour change - no one approach has all the answers, it is a complex and difficult area and this collection will be a useful reminder of this fact, while also providing important information to any practitioner seeking ways to manage and effect behaviour change. The book provides a further opportunity for people working with students in different capacities to share their experiences with others in the field, hopefully with the increased likelihood of improved student outcomes.
