The Arab World In The 20th Century:

Middle Eastern Societies in the 20th Century Jerzy Zdanowski, 2014-10-16 This book provides a comprehensive overview of the last 100 years in the Middle East from the perspective of social history. It is apt to date the beginning of the modern Middle East to the industrialization era while it extends its reach into the present. Taking its lead from modernization theory, this book illustrates past expectations of the present and helps to understand everyday occurrences rather than sensational events. It adopts a multi-disciplinary perspective and concentrates on the relationship between history and social theory. From a historical perspective, the categories of social anthropology and social theory are referred to as social mobility, urbanization, migration, cultural change, gender identities, and the young generation. The book addresses the primary issues of importance for the region: namely, natural and human resources, demography, and its dynamics, family life, patriarchy, and the emancipation of women, class structure, and social mobility, ethnic and religious minorities, migration, and its impact on culture and politics, refugees, problems in historical and contemporary contexts, urbanization in the Middle Eastern context, the challenges of development, and finally, the social and political consequences of the Arab Spring.

Air Power and the Arab World, 1909-1955 David Nicolle, Gabr Ali Gabr, 2024-02-20 This entry in the Middle East War series is illustrated with abundant photographs from previously unused or very rarely used private and official sources.

Air Power and the Arab World 1909-1955 Volume 10 continues the story of the men and machines of the first half century of military aviation in the Arab world. It tells the story of the first two weeks of the first of the Arab-Israeli Wars, also known as the Palestine War, in May 1948. Whilst part of an ongoing series, this volume stands alone as a history of the period covered. By that time, in Egypt, Iraq, Transjordan, newly independent Syria, Lebanon, and to a lesser extent Saudi Arabia, significant efforts had already been made to strengthen these countries' armed forces. Where Egypt, Iraq, and Syria were concerned, these efforts included a determination to improve or, in the case of Syria, to establish their air forces. All three air forces were thrown into the First Phase of the Palestine War, and in the view of most subsequent commentators or historians, they had failed to perform as well as their government and populations had expected. However, closer investigation and the removal of layers of propaganda, which have obscured the realities of this first Arab-Israeli War, show that the Arab air forces performed better than is generally realized. Arguably, they had their limitations and weaknesses, and these had also become apparent as the fighting intensified and losses began to mount. All this was always clearly pointed out in Arabic sources, both official and unofficial, unpublished or published only with limited circulation. Volume 10 of Air Power and the Arab World focuses on day-to-day events on the ground, in the air, and at sea during this hard-fought phase. It does so in remarkable detail because the authors have accessed previously unpublished Arab official military documents, supplemented by translations from Arabic books and articles containing official and personal accounts by those involved Perhaps the most remarkable such source is the Operational Diary of the Royal Egyptian Air Force s Tactical Air Force based at al Arish in north eastern Sinai Air Power and the Arab World 1909 1955 Volume 10 is illustrated by abundant photographs from previously unused or very rarely used private and official sources and includes specially commissioned color artworks

The International Dimensions of Democratization

in Egypt Gamal M. Selim, 2015-06-29 This book purports to examine the international dimensions of the democratization process in Egypt in the post Cold War era a theme which acquired significance at the academic and policy oriented levels in light of the growing internationalization of reform arrangements in the Arab world in post 9 11 and the greater involvement of external powers in Arab politics following the Arab Spring uprisings During the second half of the twentieth century the mainstream scholarship presented the democratization process as the outcome of domestic conditions not significantly influenced by actors outside the nation state With the end of the Cold War this perspective was challenged as a result of the third wave of democratization and the subsequent growth of the good governance discourse on the agenda of the international development establishment The new perspective attached a more significant role to external factors in the democratization process than was originally conceptualized Handbook of Comparative and Development Public Administration second coming of Jesus Christ will make The Communist Movement in the Arab World Tareq Y. Ismael, 2004-12-22

This book examines the communist movement in the Arab world from the time of the Russian revolution until after the collapse of the Soviet Union. It traces the interaction of the world communist movement which was characterized by an uncritical acceptance of Marxism Leninism and local communists who moved from initial dependence on Moscow to a position more adapted to local circumstances and sensitivities that could be characterized as a distinctive Arab communism. It goes on to trace the impact of Arab communism on a range of issues in the region, arguing that the role of Arab communist parties was highly significant and disproportionate to the relatively small numbers of communists in the countries concerned.
