The Architecture of Humanism by Geoffrey Scott an English architect is an important and inspiring book Written by a scholar of profound and comprehensive historical knowledge thoroughly trained in philosophic thought the work is not an involved and tedious presentation of an esthetic theory but rather a most clear and fascinating study of architectural taste during the past half millennium That the book is solely an attempt to justify Baroque architecture as some of Mr Scott s critics have assumed is a grave misconception of the author s purpose That he presents the later phases of the Renaissance with freshness if not from an entirely new point of view is true but he goes much further in attempting to lay the foundations for a more logical criticism and appreciation of all architecture herein lies the chief merit of the work Beginning with a quotation from Sir Henry Wotton s adaptation of Vitruvius that Well building hath three conditions Commodity Firmness and Delight he deduces the fact that the criticism of architecture has wavered between these three values not always distinguishing very clearly between them It is with the third value Delight that the author attempts chiefly to deal The science and the history he says are studies of which the method is in no dispute But for the art of architecture in the strict sense no agreement exists And further Hardly ever save in matters of mere technique has architecture been studied sincerely for itself Thus the simplest estimates of architecture are formed through a distorting atmosphere of unclear thought Axioms holding true in provinces other than that of art and arising historically in these have successively been extended by a series of false analogies into the province of architecture and these axioms unanalyzed and mutually inconsistent confuse our actual experience at the source To trace the full measure of that confusion and if possible to correct it is therefore the first object of this book      The Architecture of Humanism Geoffrey Scott, 1974

Excerpt from The Architecture of Humanism A Study in the History of Taste Architecture the most complex of the arts offers to its critics many paths of approach and as many opportunities for avoiding their goal At the outset of a fresh study in this field it is well at the risk of pedantry to define where these paths lead About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works      ARCHITECTURE OF HUMANISM GEOFFREY.
