Journal of Mathematical Economics ,1990 Monographic Series Library of Congress,1980 Theory and Estimation of Macroeconomic Rationing Models H.R. Sneessens,2012-12-06 Introducing his book The Theory of Unemployment Reconsidered Professor Malinvaud expressed several years ago his hope to convey his strong belief that the reconsideration is a major step in the development of our science In view of the stimulating effect this approach has on economic research it seems now that many economists do indeed share Malinvaud s belief and are ready to devote their time and their skill to ensure the realization of that progress This book grown out of a Ph D thesis presented at the Universit Catholique de Louvain aims at contributing in its own way to that venture Looking towards econometric applications it illustrates that a framework h la Malinvaud i e based on the theory of temporary equilibrium with rationing provides the means of improving macro econometric modelling There has been so far a wide and pervasive fear that despite its analytical and theoretical usefulness the quantity rationing approach would be much too complex to be successfully implemented into econometric models The research the interested reader will discover in the subsequent pages should convince him that the difficulty faced by econometricians is essentially I am tempted to say merely one of developing an adequate methodology it should thus disappear once is made the initial research investment The empirical results presented towards the end of the book though prelim inary already suggests that the effort is rewarding and should be continued My debts are many Economics Letters ,1981 Limited-Dependent and Qualitative Variables in Econometrics G. S. Maddala,1986-06-27 This book presents the econometric analysis of single equation and simultaneous equation models in which the jointly dependent variables can be continuous categorical or truncated Despite the traditional emphasis on continuous variables in econometrics many of the economic variables encountered in practice are categorical those for which a suitable category can be found but where no actual measurement exists or truncated those that can be observed only in certain ranges Such variables are involved for example in models of occupational choice choice of tenure in housing and choice of type of schooling Models with regulated prices and rationing and models for program evaluation also represent areas of application for the techniques presented by the author JOURNAL OF Econometrics COMPUTATION IN ECONOMETRIC MODELS Warren T. Dent,1980 Symposium on Forest Products and Roundwood Markets Mikko Tervo,J. Ashley Selby,1984
