Superlative Natalie Kristina Goldstraw, 2004 Superlative depicts the expectations and uncertainties that are at the forefront of life at the end of the twentieth century and into the contemporary moment This impressive volume of verse utilises traditional ideologies and forms and yet at the same time it also establishes a unique postmodern style that is cutting and opinionated setting the poetry a league ahead of all other modern verse There is a multitude of unparalleled themes that are confronted in this 100 plus collection of verse alongside established forms and topics The list ranging from life to death and ambition to failure is too varied and extensive to list in its entirety Humour is a primary objective of the book and one that is recurrent one fantastic example The damage is already done basks in its own self glory and is truly postmodern in its awareness of its own aptitude and magnitude Love poems are prevalent too within the collection although this is not to say that all of the love poetry is traditional The last ounce Modern day love and Oh don't get pissed again reject the style and content of the canonical love poem for something a little more postmodern As well as a variation in themes forms both traditional and original also vary to best depict or satirise the situation For example A child for the millennium uses free verse and elaborate language to parody its content that is the degenerate youth culture The result is that ironically the uneducated youth is unable to comprehend the issues that are in fact so pertinent to their lives as is the case in real life also This book is guaranteed to taunt you haunt you and leave you questioning your position in the contemporary situations that the author so ingeniously presents question what to make of that surprisingly monotonous series of statements produced by our societies and our philosophers that all converge in one theme the importance of difference To clarify the meaning of the difference at stake here we have tried to rephrase it in terms of the two major and mutually competing paradigms provided by the history of phenomenology only to find both of them equally unable to accommodate this difference without violence Neither the ethical nor the ontological approach can account for a subject that insists on playing a part of its own rather than following the script provided for it by either Being or the Good What appears to be from a Heideggerian or Levinasian perspective an unwillingness to open up to what offers to deliver us from the condition of subjectivity is analysed in these pages as a structure in its own right Far from being the wilful indifferent and irresponsible being its critics have portrayed it to be the so called postmodern subject is essentially finite not even able to assume the transcendence to which it owes its singularity This inability is not a lack it points instead to a certain unthought shared by both Heidegger and Levinas which sets the terms for a discussion no longer our own Instead of blaming Heidegger for underdeveloping being with we should rather stress that his account of mineness may be in the light of contemporary philosophy what stands most in need of revision And instead of hailing Levinas as the critic whose stress on the alterity of the Other corrects Heidegger's existential solipsism the problems into which Levinas runs in defining that alterity call for a different diagnosis and a corresponding change in the course that phenomenology has taken since Instead of preoccupying itself with the invisible we should focus on the structures of visibility that protect us from its terror The result An account of difference that is neither ontological nor ethical but in ontological and that can help us understand some of the problems our societies have come to face racism sexism multiculturalism pluralism And in the wake of this an unexpected defence of what is at stake in postmodernism and in the question it has refused to take lightly who are we Finally an homage to Arendt and Lyotard who if read through each other's lenses give an exact articulation to the question with which our age struggles how to think the human condition once one realizes that there is an inhuman side to it which instead of being its mere negation turns out to be that without which it would come to lose its humanity

Boyne, Ali Rattansi, 2017-03-01 Neither a manifesto nor a one sided critique this new book introduces a number of original essays exploring various aspects of that contemporary cultural phenomenon named postmodernism These essays are prefaced by an introductory essay which sets out the major lines of a debate which is about nothing less than the current shape and future prospects of our society      The Idea of the Postmodern Johannes Willem Bertens, 1995 Hans Bertens Postmodernism is the first introductory historical overview of postmodernism to succeed in providing a witty guide for today's student An enjoyable and indispensable text      The Parameters of Postmodernism Nicholas Zurbrugg, 2003-09-02 This ground breaking work offers a challenging and positive view of postmodern culture It draws on the author's extensive interviews with a number of leading postmodern artists writers and performers including Jean Baudrillard Samuel Beckett John Cage Phillip Glass The Parameters of Postmodernism focuses on both the prevailing negative theories of postmodernism and the more positive aspects of postmodern theory and practice The negative aspect is exemplified by the work of writers like Brecht Beckett Barthes and Baudrillard who emphasise the death of artistic innovation and the lack of a permanent reality Zurbrugg highlights the contradictions in the arguments of these writers and examines the later works in which they qualify their earlier more infamous statements The positive aspect is characterised by artists such as Cage Glass and Monk who interweave the new postmodern media with confidence and invention and Eco Grass and Wolf who revive mythological and folkloric traditions The Parameters of Postmodernism argues that in each case high tech or revivalist postmodern creativity culminates in a highly positive synthesis of past present and futuristic materials      After Theory Thomas Docherty, 1990-01-01      Voice Terminal Echo Jonathan Goldberg, 1986      Framing the Margins Phillip Brian Harper, 1994 This dramatic rereading of postmodernism seeks to broaden current theoretical conceptions of the movement as both a social philosophical condition and a literary and cultural phenomenon Phil Harper contends that the fragmentation considered to be characteristic of the postmodern age can in fact be traced to the status of marginalized groups in the United States since long before the contemporary era This status is reflected in the work of American writers from the thirties through the fifties whom Harper addresses in this study including Nathanael West Anais Nin Djuna Barnes Ralph Ellison and Gwendolyn Brooks Treating groups that are disadvantaged or disempowered whether by circumstance of gender race or sexual orientation the writers profiled here occupy the cusp between the modern and the postmodern between the recognizably modernist aesthetic of alienation and the fragmented disordered sensibility of postmodernism Proceeding through close readings of these literary texts in relation to various mass cultural productions Harper examines the social placement of the texts in the scope of literary history while analyzing more minutely the interior effects of marginalization implied by the fictional characters enacting these narratives In particular he demonstrates how these works represent the experience of social marginality as highly fractured and fracturing and indicates how such experience is implicated in the phenomenon of postmodernist fragmentation Harper thus accomplishes the vital task of recentering cultural focus on issues and groups that are decentered by very definition and thereby specifies the sociopolitical significance of postmodernism in a way that has not yet been done      Beyond Aesthetics Stuart Sim,1992 Jacques Derrida Jean Francois Lyotard Jean Baudrillard and Geoffrey Hartman all claim to have found a way to transcend value judgment This book confronts these assertions and argues that tinkers such as these have by their rejection of conventional methods of constructing value judgments succeeded in problematizing the entire area of aesthetics Stuart Sim treats poststructuralism and postmodernism as forms of anti aesthetics and contextualises the movements within a longer running tradition of anti foundationalism and radical skepticism in Western philosophy Arguing from a broadly socialist historical materialist position he demands that discourses be made to declare their ideological commitments While the radical skepticism of Derrida Lyotard Baudrillard and their followers is shown to be ultimately philosophically unsustainable and ideologically suspect from a left wing point of view Sim concludes that these critics nevertheless point to a need for reassessment of methods and objectives among critical theorists on the left      Navigating the Postmodern Condition Wade Tillett,2024 Drawing on poststructuralist frameworks this book examines the way to a radical acceptance of daily discontinuities and difference as it allows us to embrace life in the postmodern world With each chapter exploring the human relationship with a disjunction in daily life such as sleeping forgetting and multitasking the author examines overlooked aspects of daily living as fresh data from which to analyze our condition A phenomenological study of postmodern life the book provides anecdotes of what it is like to live through these gaps and theorizes how we use these gaps Using an arts based methodology the author also allows the work to mirror the discontinuities which it describes interrupting the assumption of our lives as continuous and unitary in both form and content Addressing the vast jumble of contradictions that is our daily experience in this contemporary world it offers explanation through theory and anecdote and illustrates the path toward radical acceptance which allows us to see ourselves as beautifully composed of fractures gaps and overflow It will appeal to scholars researchers and postgraduate students with interests in poststructuralism curriculum theory and art based research methods Publisher      The Genius Decision Klaus Ottmann,2004-02-19 While there is no essentialist quality of genius the postmodern artist can reach the extraordinary by way of an active passive Genius Decision which is engaged in an activity of failure in its desire to represent the nonrepresentable
