Constructing (in)competence Dana Kovarsky, Madeline Maxwell, Judith F. Duchan, 2013-06-17 Competence and incompetence are constructs that emerge in the social milieu of everyday life Individuals are continually making and revising judgments about each other's abilities as they interact. The flexible situated view of competence conveyed by the research of the authors in this volume is a departure from the way that competence is usually thought about in the fields of communication disabilities and education. In the social constructivist view, competence is not a fixed mass residing within an individual or a fixed judgment defined externally. Rather, it is variable, sensitive to what is going on in the here and now and coconstructed by those present. Constructions of competence are tied to evaluations implicit in the communication of the participants as well as to explicit evaluations of how things are going. The authors address the social construction of competence in a variety of situations: engaging in therapy for communication and other disorders; working and living with people with disabilities; speaking a second language; living with deafness; and giving and receiving instruction. Their studies focus on adults and children, including those with disabilities: aphasia, traumatic brain injury, augmentative systems users, as they go about managing their lives and identities. They examine the all-important context in which participants make competence judgments, assess the impact of implicit judgments and formal diagnoses, and look at the types of evaluations made during interaction. This book makes an argument all helping professionals need to hear: institutional clinical and social practices promoting judgments must be changed to practices that are more positive and empowering. The SAGE Encyclopedia of Contemporary Early Childhood Education Donna Couchenour, J. Kent Chrisman, 2016-08-16. The general public often views early childhood education as either simply babysitting or as preparation for later learning. Of course, both viewpoints are simplistic. Deep understanding of child development, best educational practices based on development, emergent curriculum, cultural competence, and applications of family systems are necessary for high-quality early education. Highly effective early childhood education is rare in that it requires collaboration and transitions among a variety of systems for children from birth through eight years of age. The SAGE Encyclopedia of Contemporary Early Childhood Education presents in three comprehensive volumes advanced research, accurate practical applications of research, historical foundations, and key facts from the field of contemporary early childhood education. Through approximately 425 entries, this work includes all areas of child development: physical, cognitive, language, social, emotional, aesthetic, as well as a comprehensive review of best educational practices with young children, effective preparation for early childhood professionals, and policy-making practices. It addresses such questions as: How is the field of early childhood education defined? What are the roots of this field of study? How is the history of early childhood education similar to yet different from the study of public education? What are the major influences on understandings of best practices in early childhood education?
