Supporting Home Learning in the Early Years - Handout

The Value of Human Learning

'The quality of the home learning environment is more important for intellectual and social development than parental occupation, education or income.' (JEPPI Project)

This is an important message to share with parents to help spread awareness of the value of home learning and the significant positive impact every parent can have.

To support parents' home learning it can be useful to be aware of the most common activities parents engage with.

Ten years

- Looking at a book or reading
- Learning songs, poems or nursery rhymes
- Learning numbers or to count
- Learning the alphabet or recognising words
- Painting or drawing

As practitioners we can support parents in these activities by sharing children's developmental goals and best practice. We can also suggest other activities, experiences and pedagogical approaches parents can use to add further depth to home learning.

This could include sharing the value and impact of having conversations with children to help improve
