Sure Shot And Other Poems:

Sure Shot and Other Poems Erica Funkhouser, 1992 The opening section of Erica Funkhouser's first book of poems since Natural Affinities comprises twenty-six lyric poems of a surpassing tenderness poems that explore a contemporary woman's response to elemental events and the loves and losses that make up the fabric of our human frailty Refusing to observe nature complacently she witnesses the stillbirth of a calf and deconstructs the wild diet of owls bringing an equally tough precision and richness of emotion to family life and the relations of friends and lovers The inventiveness and humor of these poems under firm formal control yet warm in their unexpected inner motions is rare indeed in contemporary poetry The second part of Sure Shot consists of three poetic monologues that reconsider the history and ideals of America through the eyes of nineteenth-century women Sacagawea the Shoshone squaw who guided Lewis and Clark up the Missouri River and across the Rockies to reach the Pacific Louisa May Alcott during her self-sacrificial girlhood in the transcendental colony of Fruitlands in Massachusetts and Annie Oakley the renowned sharpshooter who traveled around the world with Buffalo Bill Cody's Wild West Show These keenly dramatic poems display voices and textures that explore both the inner worlds of these three extraordinary women and their richly layered responses to some of the central events of the century in which they lived The light in Funkhouser's poems is generous but exacting she illuminates what we have never noticed before

Earthly Erica Funkhouser, 2008 Erica Funkhouser's fifth collection considers what it means to be earthly These are poems in which a one-eyed hawk observes us from the wide realm of his rapt patience and a group of long buried foundation stones works its way back to the earth's surface like ceremonial animals their throats unslit The central poem in the collection Pome cuts into the mythos of Johnny Appleseed the biology of apples and the poet's own experience of growing up on a farm The final section of the book contains sonnets written as an homage to the Holy Sonnets of John Donne witty graceful poems that limn the coming into consciousness of a young poet A departure from Funkhouser's previous historical narratives and her compressed lyrics the expansive poems in Earthly are sure to deliver this poet her greatest recognition yet Harvard Review, 1993

Pursuit Erica Funkhouser, 2002 Erica Funkhouser's poetry finds in the natural world a leaping off point for all types of human inquiry physical intellectual and spiritual Her fourth collection Pursuit gives us poems devoted to the details of living poems that illustrate how a domestic moment may turn suddenly erotic or how a wave of grief may open inexplicably into triumph Whether driven by elemental need or sublime desire the inhabitants of these thought provoking poems engage in seeking of every kind

Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1997 Lewis & Clark Dayton Duncan,Ken Burns,1999-08-31 The beautifully illustrated story of two unlikely friends who led the United States first expedition in search of the fabled Northwest Passage based on the acclaimed PBS documentary In the spring of 1804 at the behest of President Thomas Jefferson a party of explorers called the Corps of Discovery crossed the Mississippi River and started up the Missouri heading west into the newly acquired Louisiana Territory The expedition led by two remarkable and utterly different commanders the brilliant but troubled Meriwether Lewis and his trustworthy gregarious friend William Clark was to be the United States first exploration into unknown spaces The unlikely crew came from every corner of the young nation soldiers from New Hampshire and Pennsylvania and Kentucky French Canadian boatmen several sons of white fathers and Indian mothers a slave named York and eventually a Shoshone Indian woman Sacagawea who brought along her infant son Together they would cross the continent searching for the fabled Northwest Passage that had been the great dream of explorers since the time of Columbus Along the way they would face incredible hardship disappointment and danger record in their journals hundreds of animals and plants previously unknown to science encounter a dizzying diversity of Indian cultures and most of all share in one of America's most enduring adventures. Their story may have passed into national mythology but never before has their experience been rendered as vividly in words and pictures as in this marvelous homage by Dayton Duncan. Plentiful excerpts from the journals kept by the two captains and four enlisted men convey the raw emotions, turbulent spirits and constant surprises of the explorers who each day confronted the unknown with fresh eyes. An elegant preface by Ken Burns as well as contributions from Stephen E. Ambrose, William Least Heat Moon and Erica Funkhouser enlarge upon important threads in Duncan's narrative, demonstrating the continued potency of events that took place almost two centuries ago. And a wealth of paintings, photographs, journal sketches, maps and film images from the PBS documentary lends this historic nation redefining milestone a vibrancy and immediacy to which no American will be immune. The Congregationalist, 1924
