The Account of Creation

1 In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth. The earth was formless and empty, and darkness covered the deep waters. And the Spirit of God was hovering over the surface of the waters.

1 Then God said, "Let there be light," and there was light. And God saw that the light was good. Then he separated the light from the darkness. God called the light "day" and the darkness "night." And evening passed and morning came, marking the first day.

2 Then God said, "Let there be a space between the waters to separate the waters of the heavens from the waters of the earth." And that is what happened. God made this space to separate the waters of the earth from the waters of the heavens. And he called this space "sky." And evening passed and morning came, marking the second day.

3 Then God said, "Let the waters beneath the sky flow together into one place, so dry ground may appear." And that is what happened. And God saw that it was good. Then God said, "Let the land sprout with vegetation. Every sort of seed-bearing plant, and trees that grow seed-bearing fruit. These seeds must then produce the kinds of plants and trees from which they came." And that is what happened. The land produced vegetation—all sorts of seed-bearing plants, and trees with seed-bearing fruit. These seeds produced plants and trees of the same kind. And God saw that it was good.

And evening passed and morning came, marking the third day.

4 Then God said, "Let lights appear in the sky to separate the day from the night. Let them be signs to mark the seasons, days, and years. Let these lights in the sky shine down on the earth." And that is what happened. God made two great lights—the larger one to govern the day, and the smaller one to govern the night. He also made the stars. And God set these lights in the sky to light the earth, and he gave them power to govern the day and night, and to separate the light from the darkness. And God saw that it was good.

And evening passed and morning came, marking the fourth day.

5 Then God said, "Let the waters swarm with fish and other life. Let the sky be filled with birds of every kind." And God created great sea creatures and every living thing that scurries and swarms in the water. And that is what happened. And God saw that it was good.

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. The earth was formless and empty, and darkness covered the deep waters. And the Spirit of God was hovering over the surface of the waters.

Day 1: God created light and separated it from darkness. He called the light "day" and the darkness "night."

Day 2: God made a space between the waters to separate the waters of the earth from the waters of the heavens. He called this space "sky."

Day 3: God made land and sea. He made the land sprout with vegetation—plants, trees, fruit.

Day 4: God made lights in the sky to separate the day from the night. He made the sun to govern the day and the moon to govern the night. He also made the stars.

Day 5: God created the sea creatures and the birds.

He saw that it was good.
