

The Labyrinth

Zeus himself could not undo the web of stone closing around me. I have forgotten the men I was before; I follow the hated path of monotonous walls that is my destiny. Severe galleries which curve in secret circles to the end of the years. Parapets cracked by the days' usury.
In the pale dust I have discerned signs that frighten me. In the concave evenings the air has carried a roar toward me, or the echo of a desolate howl.
I know there is an Other in the shadows, whose fate it is to wear out the long solitudes which weave and unweave this Hades and to long for my blood and devour my death.
Each of us seeks the other. If only this were the final day of waiting.

The Golden Labyrinth Poems:

The Golden Labyrinth Maurya Simon, 1995 The poems in Simon's captivating fourth volume describe the labyrinth of India an overwhelming difficult place for a foreigner to explore but a country that seems to offer a transcendent good at its core for those who can learn to find it From a ragged boy spontaneously bursting into song on a street corner to a beggar woman whose offering of all she has left a frail dirge defies her terrible hunger Simon's images remind us again and again of what she learned in India that each small world transforms itself
