The Investigation Of Lived Experience From A Phenomenographical And:

Ethnographic Inquiry and Lived Experience Wing-Chung Ho, 2019-01-15 Ho addresses two fundamental theoretical questions about how best to practice ethnographic inquiries to obtain qualitative experience near and shareable accounts of human living The first question is regarding the epistemology of ethnography Ho posits that writing is epistemologically prior to the researcher's fieldwork experience in the production of ethnographic knowledge This stance is developed using the theories of hermeneutics put forward by Paul Ricoeur and Hans Georg Gadamer who both consider that once a text is produced its meaning is dissociated from the intention of the author The second question is what is the putative object that the ethnographer writes about Ho argues that lived experience Erlebnis offers such an ethnographic object Since the lived experience that an ethnographer experiences during fieldwork cannot be studied directly further theorizations of lived experience are necessary Ho underscores both the non discursivity and transcendence of lived experience in the lifeworld and the way power is clandestinely imbued in everyday life in shaping subjectivity and practice This theorization brings together Alfred Schutz's lifeworld theory and Michel Foucault's power knowledge nexus The result is a general theory of experience that is pertinent for ethnographic inquiries By addressing these two fundamental questions and offering novel angles from which to answer them this book offers refreshed epistemological guidelines for conducting ethnographic research for scientific reasoning More importantly this book also provides a crucial knowledge base for comprehending the current epistemological debates inherent in the production of ethnographic knowledge and furthering discussions in the field

Phenomenology in Action for Researching Networked Learning Michael Johnson, Felicity Healey-Benson, Catherine Adams, Nina Bonderup Dohn, 2024-08-14 This book champions phenomenology's place in networked learning theory research and practice The book illuminates and showcases something of the powerful richness depth and novel insights offered by phenomenological perspectives on human experience to invoke a fundamental rethinking of experience in networked learning It also signals the broader learning technology community to acknowledge and engage with these perspectives The editors and authors have collaborated to bring a renewed focus upon the human facet of networked learning As our world becomes more digitally enmeshed infiltrated and contested the need to investigate and convey at maximum fidelity the lived experience of learners teachers and other stakeholders in education becomes paramount Through phenomenological inquiry we disclose the complex dance between the human and the technical spotlighting how individuals engage navigate and find meaning within virtual yet embodied landscapes This approach suitably honours the complexity profundity and ethicality of human existence in our evolving digital ecologies The first section Phenomenological Perspectives in Researching Networked Learning lucidly explains phenomenology and some of its potential affordances The second section Practising Phenomenological Research in Networked Learning explicates the tangible practice of phenomenological research into specific phenomena chapters sample of a select range of studies that also indicate the kind of insights such research can bring to networked learning The concluding section presents two chapters that denote novel and arresting Critical

Phenomenological Perspectives on Networked Learning Together these final chapters demonstrate the type of radical challenge that phenomenology can bring to the field refreshing even networked learning's most basic conceptions and practices With this book we open a space for anyone who wishes to join us in the wonderful inspiring and challenging application of phenomenology within the field of networked learning Towards a Theory of Transpersonal Decision-Making in Human-Systems Joseph Riggio, 2007-06 Decision Making gets significant coverage in the business press and as an academic topic in business schools However there is a dearth of information on the transpersonal consideration on decision making and how it effects leaders and leadership in human systems Maximizing positive results in human systems requires the decision maker to maintain a constant consideration of both local and non local elements impacting and being impacted by the decision's being made This book introduces the concept of Scope of Decision as a way of arriving at higher quality decisions by considering them from a greater distance from the decision maker in the time space continuum The author designed and used a unique exemplar modeling paradigm to conduct the research using the proven methodologies of phenomenography and neurolinguistic modeling This study presented in this book attempts to offer some insight on the transpersonal process of intentionality in decision making specifically as it applies to making high quality decisions in human systems As stated in the title this study was not intended to be exhaustive but rather to open new pathways of consideration and knowing in regard to the topic of decision making The conclusions arrived at read like a compass pointing to the means for dramatically improving your decision making and are best described in the sometimes hauntingly poetic language of the participants as they explore and discover their own processes for what goes into making exquisite decisions Being and Becoming an Ex-Prisoner Diana Johns, 2017-07-20 Despite broad scholarship documenting the compounding effects and self reproducing character of incarceration ways of conceptualising imprisonment and the post prison experience have scarcely changed in over a century Contemporary correctional thinking has congealed around notions of risk and management This book aims to cast new light on men's experience of release from prison Drawing on research conducted in Australia it speaks to the challenges facing people leaving prison and seeking acceptance amongst the non imprisoned around the world Johns reveals the complexity of the post prison experience which is frequently masked by constructions of risk that individualise responsibility for reoffending and reimprisonment This book highlights the important role of community in ex prisoner integration in providing opportunities for participation and acceptance Johns shows that the process of becoming an ex prisoner is not simply one of individual choice or larger structural forces but occurs in the spaces in between Being and Becoming an Ex Prisoner reveals the complex interplay between internal and external meanings and practices that causes men to feel neither locked up nor wholly free It will appeal to scholars and students interested in desistance criminology criminological or penological theory sociology and qualitative research methods Theory and Method in Higher Education Research II Jeroen Huisman, Malcolm Tight, 2014-02-20 This is the second volume in this series dedicated to Theory and

Method in Higher Education Research Publishing contemporary contributions to international debates regarding the application and development of theory and methodology in researching higher education this volume aims to offer a channel for discussion critique and innovation A Phenomenological Inquiry into Science Teachers' Case Method Learning Sye Foong Yee, 2018-10-04 This book illustrates a practical application of the Case Method as a teaching technique in teacher education and examines how learning takes place in a teacher professional development activity It also describes teachers lived experience of the activity based on Clark Moustakas 1994 guidelines for organizing and presenting a phenomenological study
